Friday, September 30, 2005: 1:00 PM – 5:30 PM

Saturday, October 1, 2005: 9:30 AM – 12:30 PM

What would be an ideal set of rules for assigning newborn children to parents? Participants in this conference will propose and defend statutory rules for state formation of legal parent-child relationships that they believe would serve children's welfare better than existing rules for maternity and paternity, bringing to bear on this issue social science research on the consequences for children of particular parental characteristics and circumstances.

For two decades, the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the William and Mary School of Law has sought to improve scholarly and popular understanding of our Bill of Rights.

The Institute of Bill of Rights Law carries out its mission in a variety of ways, including conferences on both scholarly and popular topics, parliamentary-style debates and public lectures, a prize-winning book series, a scholarly journal, and an endowed visiting professorship. The Institute also coordinates an extensive visitor program that brings many leading jurists, scholars, lawyers, and journalists to the William and Mary campus to discuss important issues that pertain to our Bill of Rights.
