THE OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES DEVISE

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. (March 8, 1841-March 6, 1935) was Associate Justice of the United States from 1902 to 1932. The son of a noted physician and poet of the same name, twice wounded in battle in the Civil War, he was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1867. Both in practice and in legal scholarship he attained early eminence; his famous work on The Common Law, first published in 1881, has gone through nearly forty printings and is considered a classic of legal history. In 1883 he began the first of two distinguished judicial careers, on the high court of Massachusetts, where he served until nominated to the Supreme Court of the United States. Upon his death at the age of 94, the bulk of his estate was left to the United States of America. It is administered by the Permanent Committee of the Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise in the Library of Congress. In 1955 the income of the Devise was allocated to the work of preparing a multivolume scholarly history of the Supreme Court, the first volumes of which are now approaching publication. In 1969 a portion of the income was set aside to support the Holmes Devise Lectures.

THE HOLMES DEVISE LECTURES

Each year the series of Holmes Devise Lectures is given at a different American law school. The lectures to date, and the lecturers, are:

- 1960-61 Justice Holmes, Natural Law and the Supreme Court, by Francis Biddle, former Attorney General of the United States, at the University of Texas.
- 1961-62 The Morality of Justice Holmes, by Judge Charles Wyzanski, Jr., at the University of Colorado.
- 1962-63 Justice Holmes and the Uses of Legal History, by Professor James Willard Hurst of the University of Wisconsin, at the State University of Iowa.
- 1963-64 Apology for Uncomfortable Change, 1863-1963, by Professor Arthur E. Sutherland, Jr., at the University of North Carolina.
- 1964-65 Federalism and States' Rights in Theory and Practice, by Judge William Hastie, at Washington University (St. Louis).
