1988

William & Mary Law School
Relaxed, well-spoken, and nattily dressed, Chief Justice of the United States William Rehnquist addressed a capacity crowd of law students and faculty members on January 27 at Milton Hall. Unaffected to the point of hopping up on the lab table behind him, the Chief Justice gave a casual talk designed to provide some insight into what he called the “cycle of a Supreme Court Justice’s life.” He noted that “It’s kind of like being a law student: you can’t really know what it’s like unless you do it.”

Chief Justice Rehnquist began the program with a brief overview of the course of a Supreme Court session. He explained the Court’s procedures for handling the 4,000-5,000 petitions for certiorari the Court receives annually, the process of choosing and hearing the cases that are argued before the Court, and the protocol for the conferences in which the justices vote to decide the cases. The conferences are conducted in such absolute confidence that if someone knocks at the door, all discussion stops and the junior justice—Antonin Scalia, until recently—confirmed Anthony Kennedy takes his seat—is sent to open the door and handle the interruption. Tongue in cheek, the Chief Justice explained that this duty falls to the junior justice “because he’s the least important person in the room – at least for the purposes of answering the door.”

The Chief Justice then held an extensive question-and-answer session that proved to be as entertaining as it was educational. Rehnquist declined to answer most questions asked of him about substantive law, indicating that the question-and-answer format did not offer the requisites for good constitutional decision-making. “I’m not on the Court because I have a vast knowledge of constitutional law,” the Chief Justice said. Instead, he hoped he had become accomplished at the process of constitutional decision-making: reading the briefs, listening to oral arguments, discussing the issues with his fellow justices, assimilating any necessary research, then coming to the best
Career Planning and Placement News

Alumni can play an active, important role in students' search for a summer or post-graduate job. We urge you or your employer to recruit on campus or to be listed as a non-visiting employer interested in receiving student resumes. Please contact Associate Dean Robert Kaplan or Linda Spalding, Placement Coordinator, in the Office of Career Planning and Placement for information.

Spring Semester Panels

- February 2: Judicial Clerkships Information Panel
- February 3: Second Years tell: What I did during my summer vacation—non law firm jobs directed at first years
- February 23: Sports and Entertainment Law Panel
- March 23: Legal Career Options sponsored by the Young Lawyers' division of the ABA
- March 30: How to survive the summer—do's and don't's for a successful summer

Pool of Applicants for 1988 Largest in Law School's History

The February 18 issue of the Wall Street Journal stated that law schools are besieged by applications. The number of students applying to law schools is up—the first nationwide rise since 1983, says the Law School Admissions Council. National statistics indicate students shunned law schools between 1982 and 1987, perhaps thinking the big money was to be made on Wall Street.

Marshall-Wythe escaped the prolonged downturn after a decline in 1984 which has been followed with an increase in each subsequent year. A record number of over 2,300 applications for admission in 1988 have arrived from 49 states, the District of Columbia, and several foreign countries. This represents a 15% increase from 1987 and the largest applicant volume in the history of the Law School. Competition for admission to Marshall-Wythe appears to have reached a new high in terms of quality as well as in number.

---

Spring Reunion Schedule of Events
April 29 and 30, 1988

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Time</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Continuing Legal Education</td>
<td>Law School</td>
<td>9:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bar-B-Que</td>
<td>Law School Grounds</td>
<td>5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Colonial Run</td>
<td>Wren Building</td>
<td>7:30 a.m. to 8:00 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Annual Meeting</td>
<td>Law School</td>
<td>8:30 a.m. to 9:00 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Continuing Legal Education</td>
<td>Law School</td>
<td>9:00 a.m. to 12:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tours of Law School</td>
<td>Law School</td>
<td>11:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>12:00 p.m. to 12:30 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>1:00 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Golf</td>
<td>Ford's Colony</td>
<td>1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tennis</td>
<td>College Courts</td>
<td>1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cocktail Party</td>
<td>Campus Center</td>
<td>6:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note location change

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Time</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Class Photographs</td>
<td>Campus Center</td>
<td>7:00 p.m. to 7:15 p.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note location change

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Time</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dance (with DJ)</td>
<td>Campus Center</td>
<td>8:00 p.m. - midnight</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

For more information, contact Deborah S. Vick, Associate Dean for Development and Alumni Affairs, Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Williamsburg, VA 23185 (804) 253-4886.
In 1987, the law students at Marshall-Wythe founded a new private non-profit organization, the William and Mary Public Service Fund. In the past, few students pursued public interest internships due to the lack of compensation. By fostering awareness, appreciation, and tangible support for public interest law, the Fund will provide law students who wish to work for public interest groups with financial support. This summer at least three stipends will be awarded to students who apply to the Fund.

The fundraising efforts of the Public Service Fund have been supported by Law Students Involved in the Community consisting of 15 first, second, and third year law students, plus faculty members and administrators who have joined in an effort to support volunteer activities in the community. Additionally, an executive board has been established to govern the Public Service Fund next year.

Fundraising activities include a weekly donut sale, sales of coffee mugs, sweatshirts and T-shirts with Marshall-Wythe School of Law logos, and a "Power Lounge-a-Thon". The lounging competition added an academic twist to the traditional concept of walk-a-thons. Instead of receiving pledges for miles walked, students constructively harnessed their tendency to procrastinate by collecting pledges for the number of hours spent sitting in the law school lobby.

This spring another innovative fundraising program was introduced... a Dinner and Date Auction where 20 elegant dinners and lunches donated by local Williamsburg restaurants were auctioned off with 20 first-year law students acting as escorts to the winners. The auction earned over $1,300 and was enjoyed thoroughly by all who attended and participated. Additionally, Dean Sullivan has committed $2,000 of private funds to this endeavor. While these activities reflect a promising start for fundraising efforts, the number of students who need support far exceeds the resources available.

One other activity targeted for 1988 involves an income-sharing program where law students pledge a percentage of their salaries from summer clerkships to provide stipends for fellow law students working in public interest positions. Over 40 law schools around the country sponsor similar programs and have enjoyed great success.

The Marshall-Wythe community hopes to be able to offer support to every student interested in working in the public interest field. Public service is seen as a valuable as well as an integral part of the legal profession.

T-Shirts, Mugs and Sweatshirts For Sale

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Heavy Duty Sweatshirts $26</th>
<th>T-Shirts - 100% cotton Long</th>
<th>Short Sleeved $12</th>
<th>Sleeved $9</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>X-large</td>
<td>X-large</td>
<td>Long Sleeved $12</td>
<td>Short Sleeved $9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Large</td>
<td>Large</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Medium</td>
<td>Medium</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Small</td>
<td>Small</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Proceeds from sales to the Public Service Fund.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Total merchandise $</th>
<th>Postage $ 2.75</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Total enclosed</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mail order forms and checks to:

Deborah S. Vick
Marshall-Wythe School of Law
The College of William and Mary
Williamsburg, VA 23185
Books Given to Library in Memory of Jacob L. and Sallie Rome Morewitz

In the 1986-87 academic year, Burt M. Morewitz ’42, who studied law at William and Mary and who is an attorney in Newport News, made a gift of law books valued above $5,000 in memory of his parents, Jacob L. and Sallie Rome Morewitz. The gift includes Federal Reporter, Federal Supplement, Modern Federal Practice Digest and Federal Rules Decisions volumes.

In 1966, Mr. and Mrs. Morewitz had donated between 600 to 700 books to the library, including supplemental Virginia materials and a number of rare books.

Mrs. Morewitz, a special student in the law class of 1930, was the first woman student from William and Mary to be admitted to the bar (December 15, 1930). When she was admitted to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, on April 18, 1949, the clerk issued her certificate in the name of “Sallie Rome Morewitz, Esquire.”

Former Secretary Gives $500,000 to College

“Miss Pearl” Jones Served Five W&M Presidents

William and Mary has received a half-million-dollar bequest from the estate of Pearl H. Jones, a secretary who served five presidents of the college for a total of 38 years. The gift will benefit the college's Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Miss Jones, who died in December 1986 at the age of 94, left in her estate a provision of $500,547 for the purchase of books for the law school library. The gift was made in memory of her brother-in-law, James P. Alexander, and his wife, Grace Virginia Alexander.

The funds were delivered in December to President Paul R. Verkuil ’61 and law school Dean Timothy J. Sullivan ’66 by President Emeritus Davis Y. Paschall ’32, who was in office when Miss Jones retired in 1963, and local attorney C. Harper Anderson ’40, ’42 B.L., who handled her estate.

Dr. Verkuil said the gift represents “an enormous boost” for the law school. “The Marshall-Wythe School of Law has experienced a tremendous growth in the stature of its programs in recent years,” Verkuil said. “This gift will accelerate its rise to new levels of prominence. We will shepherd these funds wisely in keeping with the wishes of the donor.

Miss Jones stayed in Williamsburg in retirement, and Dr. Paschall said he visited her each year at Christmas and Easter at her home on Scotland Street. Only once, he recalled, did she raise the question of giving to the College, and on that occasion he mentioned library resources for the law school as a possibility. Prior to her bequest provision, she has made gifts for student financial aid and faculty support.

Dr. Paschall described Miss Jones as a “prim, Victorian-type lady of culture and refinement. She was not only very punctual and efficient, but also the most ‘close-mouthed’ person I ever encountered.” While she greeted visitors warmly, he recalled, she was very discreet about the work of the president's office.

Miss Jones joined the College staff in 1922 as a secretary in the bursar's office, and in 1925 became secretary to President Julian A.C. Chandler (1919-34). She later served in the same capacity for the entire terms of presidents John Stewart Bryan (1934-42), John Edwin Pomfret (1942-51), and Alvin Duke Chandler (1951-60), and for the first three years of Dr. Paschall’s (1960-71).

A native of James City County, Miss Jones lived most of her life in Williamsburg.

Rehnquist Speaks

Cont. from page 1.

decision he can. Any answer given without the benefit of such process would be at best incomplete, at worst misleading.

Throughout his presentation, Rehnquist's charm and humor showed clearly. When asked about the power and influence of the chief justice, Rehnquist replied that the power was much more limited than some observers claimed it to be, but that he did take great pleasure in one of the privileges of the position: the right to push the red button that signals lawyers before the court to stop talking.

In response to another question about how he got to be chief justice, Rehnquist replied, “Luck,” then quoted Justice Tom C. Clark, who said that it was simply a matter of “being there when the bus went by.” Several times when questioners referred to cases by name, the chief justice had to be reminded of the facts, leading him to remark, “When I was your age I had a good memory, too.” The remark was fitting: most members of the audience left feeling that the Chief Justice had provided them with sound advice on constitutional decision-making, an entertaining afternoon, and a good memory.
Faculty Profile

Lynda Butler

by Jerome Self

Another Monday morning class at Marshall-Wythe Law School rolls into motion except that in a first-year Property class a strong staccato voice claims attention immediately, "Mr. Murphy, is that a hand or yawn?" Wry smile, followed by a roll of the eyes and Professor Lynda Butler has the whole class of one hundred plus students with her, listening closely to every word. Last semester Prof. Butler visited Ohio State. Her reputation as being "tough" had preceded her, but with the degree of knowledge and the finesse of approach that go into this professor's teaching, one will not hear complaints but admiration and a deep appreciation for the level of scholarship that is readily evident in each hour of class. The appreciation cuts both ways, for Professor Butler gives a high ranking to students at Marshall-Wythe, as compared with other law students nationwide.

Her background is distinguished. She was Phi Beta Kappa at William and Mary where she majored in mathematics. She received her law degree from University of Virginia Law School where she served on the Virginia Law Review and was a member of Order of the Coif. Between her undergraduate years and law school, she taught math at the junior high level, but during these years she always intended to go into law. With a smile of reflection she recalls, "While I was in law school, I found I still wanted to teach. When students asked questions, I seemed to understand exactly what they were asking. Of course, it becomes much harder when you are the one in front of the class being asked the questions."

Professor Butler went into practice immediately after finishing law school. She, as many lawyers have before and since, encountered frustration with a pace that was "so hectic with never enough time to think deeply about subjects of interest." The appeal of scholarship and the opportunity to teach were more compelling. After a year at the prestigious Washington firm of Wilmer, Cutler, and Pickering, she returned to Williamsburg and to teaching.

What constitutes a good class? "Participation." Her enthusiasm emerges when discussing the gratification of seeing the overall progress of students, "how far they've come" between their first year and second year. The students themselves recognize the impact of her teaching in this learning process. One student on Law Review commented that Professor Butler's class made a substantial contribution to his ability to think like an advocate about each angle of a case. Indeed, her superb teaching style resembles a good game of tennis with points logically placed and all aimed at achieving a comprehensive understanding of a technical field.

Her mathematics background has been helpful in providing the analytical skills and the intense concentration necessary to conducting research and writing about law. She recently finished co-authoring an 800-page book on the land and waters of Virginia. The law school received a grant from Lawyer's Title and Professor Butler was chosen by former Dean Spong, along with co-author Professor Margit Livingston, to work on the five-year project.

The book explores the tension between private and public interests in Virginia's valuable tidal resources. In particular, it examines the extent of private ownership rights in coastal lands and the impact of public interests on those ownership rights. The book begins with a scientific perspective, discussing some of the ecological and physical characteristics of Virginia's tidal zone and making some suggestions for reform. As the length of the book suggests, Virginia law is very complex in this area. But despite that complexity, the inescapable conclusion of all the research is that public rights do exist in Virginia's tidal resources.

As Butler explains, "Virginia's dedication to public rights has existed for hundreds of years. It is now time for that dedication to be expressed more forcefully in stronger environmental laws."

This fall semester Professor Butler taught Sales and Commercial Paper at Ohio State University. Comparing the OSU student body to William and Mary's, Professor Butler found OSU's students equally talented but more hesitant to speak up - possibly a Midwestern trait. Marshall-Wythe students, on the other hand, are very ready to ask questions, disagree, and generally contribute to class discussions.

Professor Butler noted that Ohio State's facilities were housed in older buildings and lacked the amenities and conveniences of modern facilities. But you can hear the echo of impressions from last semester, when we discuss what she would ideally envision for Marshall-Wythe's progress over the next five years: "Stronger reputation, larger facilities, more faculty, more library staff, more support staff, larger endowment."

Balance, commitment and intensity, all appropriate adjectives to describe this law professor - but balance predominate. Asked how she deals with the competing interests of teaching and scholarship, she replies, "The two usually do not conflict. Scholarship clearly improves teaching, adding a depth of understanding that cannot be acquired from a casebook. Scholarship also makes a subject more interesting. Legal rules may be picky and detailed; scholarship takes you beyond those rules. But when the two do conflict, I try to follow a simple rule: "focus on class first."
Keith Krusz: Drapers’ Scholar

Next year marks the 30th anniversary of the Drapers’ Company program which was initiated by former William and Mary President Alvin D. Chandler in 1959. When it was started, it was only the second opportunity offered to William and Mary students to study abroad. Earlier a student program was started at the University of Exeter in England. Today the College has an expanded program of international studies and work is being completed on a Center for International Studies on campus.

The Drapers’ Company has existed since the 12th century but was formally chartered by King Edward III in 1364 as one of a number of guilds of London during the Middle Ages. At first limited to wool cloth merchants, the Drapers’ Company today exists as trustee of a number of charities including several educational programs.

Keith Krusz, our 1988 Drapers’ Scholar, is in the top 6 percent of his class, serves on Law Review, serves as a teaching assistant to first-year law students for Legal Writing, and is law school representative to the Board of Student Affairs. He has been awarded Goodwin and Campbell scholarships for his academic accomplishments in law school. He earned a double major in mathematics and political science with honors from Kenyon College in Ohio.

All of this information plus his extensive teaching experience quickly fills a résumé. But a résumé could never capture the spirit and dedication of this individual. Rejected by the four law schools he applied to right out of college, he turned to teaching and excelled at it. While at Chatham Hall School, he received the Faculty Service Award for his exceptional devotion to other members of the faculty and students. But attending law school continued to be a goal, and with the next application he succeeded.

His presence at Marshall-Wythe has been beneficial to the law school and fellow law students not only because of his academic activities, but because he will go the extra mile to help others succeed. It is not unusual to see Keith during the day or late into the night, surrounded by first-year students, while he carefully explains with patience, detail, and precision everything from Blue Book cite information to issue formulation for memo writing.

The Drapers’ Scholarship provides a graduate of Marshall-Wythe the opportunity to earn an LL.M. at University of London. Four year-long courses are taken: two at Queen Mary’s College and the other two courses may be from any other college at the university, including the London School of Economics where Keith intends to study. He views his year in England as an opportunity to “round out” his legal education. He also finds “the study of law, from either behind or in front of the desk, an appealing and acceptable profession in and of itself.”

As a Drapers’ Scholar, Keith will experience for the first time the opportunity to travel abroad. Along with exploring Great Britain, he intends to go to Italy in search of his family roots. When he returns to the United States after his year in England, Keith plans to practice law with the firm of Shipman and Goodwin in Hartford, 15 miles from his hometown of Bristol, Conn.

1930’s

Joseph N. Cridlin, ’35, retired circuit judge, is chairman of the board for the Powell Valley National Bank in Jonesville, Va. and is currently a farmer.

1940’s

Ira Bernard Dworkin, ’48, is presently writing his latest book, entitled “Sherlock Takes a Wife.” He is practicing law part-time in an advisory capacity; he retired as a New Jersey Judge of Workers’ Compensation on July 1, 1986.

1950’s

Hillsman V. Wilson, ’53, retired as president and chief executive officer of McCormick & Co., Inc., on May 1, 1987. He had worked for that firm for 32 years.

1960’s

Charles Lewis King ’56, died at his home in Falls Church, Va. on September 21, 1987. He was a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity. His wife Mary is a member of the class of 1956.

Cabell Tennis, ’56, was awarded a Master of Divinity by the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia on Oct. 13, 1987. After serving 14 years as dean of St. Mark’s Cathedral in Seattle, the Rt. Rev. Tennis was elected ninth bishop of Delaware in June 1986.

Shannon T. Mason, Jr., ’82, was recommended for a federal judgeship in the Eastern District of Virginia by Senator Paul Tribble and approved by the White House in December 1987.

Allen C. Brownfeld, ’64, is associate editor of The Lincoln Review and writes a syndicated column.

Richard B. Berman, ’67, has been named executive vice president for public affairs for the Pillsbury Restaurant Group. He is a member of the Labor Relations Policy Committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and president of Beverage Retailers Against Drunk Driving (BRADD).

Shepherd Lewis, ’67, has been promoted to senior vice president for compliance of the Colonial Savings and Loans Association. He has served as secretary since 1985.

Cyrus E. Phillips IV, '68, former vice chairman of the Board of Contract Appeals of the General Services Administration, has become of counsel to the law firm of McGuire, Woods, Battle & Boothe.

Ronald A. Woerle, '68 and his wife Anne (W & M '65) are in their ninth year of living in Bermuda, where he is a director of Fairway Management, a firm offering company and management services to offshore companies. They are never more than 500 yards from the ocean and would love to hear from visiting alumni.

John D. Sours, '69, is a partner in an Atlanta firm which he co-founded in 1979. The firm specializes in contract law and has just hired its eighth attorney.

1970's

Charles F. Midkiff, '70, has formed Midkiff & Associates, P.C. in Richmond. The firm will concentrate its practice in accountants' and insurance agents' law, liability and workers' compensation litigation, and energy/public utility law.

Richard L. Young, '71, is currently on leave as an instructor and course developer at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (alias program manager/microcomputer training) to obtain a master's degree in computer based education from the University of Georgia.

Michael W. Cannaday, '73, was recently elected chairman of the Virginia Board of Commerce. He is a member of the executive board of the Blue Ridge Mountains Council of the Boy Scouts of America and vice president of the Martinsville-Henry County Bar Association.

Tommy E. Miller, '73, formerly an assistant U.S. attorney, recently became a federal magistrate for the Eastern District of Virginia.

H. Vincent Conway, Jr., '73, was nominated by the Democratic Party for the Virginia House of Delegates in November 1987. He is chairman of the Newport News Bicentennial Commission on the U.S. Constitution and serves as a member of the judiciary, long range planning and professionalism committee of the Virginia State Bar.

Phillip Richard (Rick) Anderson, Jr., '73, was recently elected partner-in-charge of the Louisville office of a 100+ member law firm. He also serves as a member of the executive (management) committee and as hiring partner.

R. Bruce Long, '74, and his wife Joy recently relocated their law offices to Abingdon, Va. Mrs. Long also works as assistant commonwealth's attorney in Gloucester.

Julian H. Raney, Jr., '74, is general district court judge of the 23rd Judicial District in Roanoke, Virginia.

Wayne M. Lee, '75, became a managing director of Bankers Trust Co. in New York City in July 1987. He joined the company in February 1986 as a vice president in the merger acquisitions group.

Daniel P. Small, '75, was recently appointed a hearing officer for Commonwealth of Virginia Administrative Hearings by the Virginia Supreme Court.

Kevin J. Barry, '75, was recently promoted to captain in the U.S. Coast Guard and transferred to become chief of the Legislation Division of the Coast Guard in Washington, D.C.

John G. MacConnell, '76, has recently opened his own law office in Richmond, Va.

Judy Wall, '76, and her husband Rick have a daughter: Ryan Rebecca, born on Jan. 7, 1987. Mrs. Wall has spent almost 10 years with the Office of Chief Counsel of the Internal Revenue Service.

William M. Batts, III, '76, retired from the U.S. Army in July 1986 and accepted a position as dean of student services at Texas Southern University in Houston, Texas. He now holds the vice-president level position of director of auxiliary operations.

Richard N. Seaman, '76, joined the litigation department of Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver, and Jacobson's D.C. office. Fried, Frank is a Wall Street firm with extensive government and corporate contracts practice.

Elisa J. Grammer, '76, recently joined Baller, Hammett & Williams, PC, Washington, as a partner. The firm is now named Baller, Hammett, Williams & Grammer, PC. It specializes in natural gas regulatory matters. She also became a contributing editor of Petroleum Weekly Magazine, writing a monthly column on issues of interest to the oil and gas industry.

Mark Edward Slaughter, '76, and his wife had a baby daughter, Alana Lynn, born on Feb. 3, 1988. They also have a son, Sean Michael, who is 5. Mr. Slaughter is now with Pender & Coward in Virginia Beach.

Jamie F. Stone, '77, is a CPA in the tax department of the "Big 8" accounting firm Peat, Marwick, Marwit and was recently promoted to Senior Manager in the Washington office.

R. Barrow Blackwell, '77, was awarded the Pro Bono Publico award by the Virginia Bar Association on Jan. 15, 1988. He was responsible for establishing a pro bono legal services program that serves Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Chesapeake.

John T. Nolan, '78, is finishing his second year of private practice in Germany. He's still having no luck persuading the German Bar to join the 20th century!

Thomas R. Watkins, Jr., '78, is a leasing agent for southeast retail properties for a Philadelphia-based real estate company: Strouse, Greenberg & Co., Inc. He leases shopping malls in Danville, Va.; in Greensboro and Winston, N.C.; and in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

James Alexander Ronea, '78, is currently head of the trial team and advisor for the arson unit in the Burlington County, New Jersey, prosecutor's office. He married Bernadette in 1983 and has a daughter, Jacqueline, who was born in February 1986.

Jay P. Porter, '78, is a partner in the 45-attorney firm of Brouse & McDowell in Akron, Ohio. The firm specializes in real estate and business law.

Sharon E. Pandak, '78, is now serving as deputy county attorney for Prince William County, Virginia.

R. Edwin Burnett, Jr., '78 of Lynchburg, Va., was included in the 1987-88 edition of "Who's Who in American Law."

Cynthia K. Baskett, '79, was sworn in May 12, 1987, as divorce commissioner of Norfolk, Va., after nearly four years practice specializing in divorces.

Rebecca Beach Smith, '79, of Norfolk, Va., was appointed a U.S. magistrate for the Eastern District of Virginia on July 1, 1985. She has two sons, ages 2 and 5.

Clare L. McCulla, '79, has been the managing attorney of the Alexandria office of Legal Services of Northern Virginia for five years.

Dorothy S. Costello, '79, was appointed corporate secretary of General Refractioneer Co. on June 1, 1987. This appointment was in addition to her duties as corporate counsel.

1980's

Neil V. Birchoff, '80, is now associated with Woods, Rogers & Hazegrove in Roanoke, Va., after serving four years as a trial attorney in the Tax Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. He received an L.L.M. in Taxation from the George Washington University National Law Center in February 1984.

Neil Buckelew, '80, and her husband returned to Norfolk, Va. in April 1987 after two and a half years living in Idaho and one year living in Newport, R.I. Bill has command of the U.S.S. Spartanburg County, and Neil has command of their two sons: Eric, born in September 1984, and Elliott, born in October 1986.

William E. King, '80, has been promoted to director of office leasing by Harvey Lindsay Commercial Real Estate in Norfolk, Va., after four years as an agent for office leasing for the firm. He serves on the board of directors of Southeastern Virginia Food Bank.

J. Stanley Payne, Jr., '80, was recently promoted to deputy executive director of the Virginia Port Authority. He is currently working on the renourishment of Virginia's beaches.

Catherine A. Blue, '80, has two children: a daughter, Mairad, 4, and a son, Pierce. J. She works for the public television station WBED which produces the National Geographic Specials.

Keith B. Willhelm, '81, is practicing with Leydig, Voit & Mayer in Chicago. He specializes in intellectual property litigation.

Cynthia P. Cobbs, '81, is an associate in the Public Finance Division of E. F. Hutton & Co., Inc. in New York City. She and her husband, James E. Ludwig, have a son, John Travis Ludwig, born on April 7, 1987.

Mark S. Kuehn, '81, received an L.L.M. in Taxation from New York University in 1982 and practiced tax law for two years as an associate with Stanley & Fisher, P.C. in Morristown, N.J. In 1984 he left the practice of law to found General Messenger Service, Inc. and to purchase Penny Press, Inc. He is currently president of both companies, running Penny Press Full time, and is married to the former Nancy Hufnagel, an assistant general counsel for the Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

Renae Reed Patrick, '81, acted as co-counsel in Wright vs. City of Roanoke Rede. & Hous. Auth., 107 S.Ct. 766 (1987). She was appointed substitute judge for the General District and Juvenile Domestic Relations District Courts of the 23rd Judicial District of Virginia in September 1987.
Kevin R. Vienna, ’81, returned from two years in Guam in July 1987 to attend the graduate program at the University of Virginia School of Law. He is still in the Navy JAG. His next assignment will be with the Office of the Judge Advocate General in Alexandria, Va.

Paul J. Ritz, ’81, received his L.L.M. in Taxation in January 1987. He and his wife had their second child, Timothy, in March 1987. They are now living in West Long Branch, N.J.

Barbara Lorenston Heywood, ’81, and her husband David had their first child, Christopher John, on August 30, 1987. Barbara has an Employee Benefits practice.

Claire P. Swanson, ’82, is now associated with the law firm of Robert P. Quadros (74) in Newport News, Va.

Janet Lannin Quinn, ’82, married LCDR John Quinn, USN, in December 1984. After serving five years in the Navy Judge Advocate General’s Corps in San Francisco and Norfolk, she will be leaving the Navy to care for their son, John Robinson, who was born on May 29, 1987.

Kathleen Dawson Shaw, ’82, has been awarded a fellowship to study mental health law at the University of Virginia. The program leads toward an L.L.M.

Bradford J. Bruton, ’82, his wife Becky (NC Law ’81), their son Derek, and their daughter Sarah have relocated in Reston, Va., after four years overseas at the U.S. embassies in Asuncion, Paraguay, and Tel Aviv, Israel. They anticipate living for three years in Bangkok, Thailand, beginning in mid-summer 1988.

Peter H. Rudy, ’82, of Denver is involved in management/labor law for the sports and entertainment industry.

Jeff D. Rupp, ’82, moved in August 1987 to Izmir, Turkey, where he works at NATO headquarters for Turkey. He had previously worked at NATO headquarters for Southern Europe in Naples, Italy. He is involved in international law, criminal defense work and general civil practice.

Jeffrey P. Matthews, ’83, has been a Senior Deputy District Attorney for Denver’s western suburbs for four and a half years. He married Doris R. Kimbrough (B.S. in chemistry from W & M; Ph.D. from Cornell in 1985) on August 8, 1987.

Linda M. Macrae, ’82, and Howard T. Macrae, ML & T ’85, had a daughter, Elizabeth Alexandra Macrae on November 17, 1987.

Kathryn Derr Kohler, ’82, and William Kohler, ’82, had a daughter, Megan Sara, on May 21, 1987. Kathy was promoted to senior attorney in January 1987. The couple would like to hear from their law school friends.

Douglas E. Wright, ’82, is an associate with Nichols, Caffrey, Hill, Evans & Murrelle, Greensboro, N.C., doing mostly insurance defense, product liability, and commercial litigation. He and his wife, Leslee Ann, have a son, William Spencer, who turned 1 year old on October 12, 1987.

Kevin P. O'Mahony, ’82, reports that the firm of Coleman, Thrasher & O'Mahony, and David J. Dempsey, have formed a law partnership: Coleman, Dempsey, O'Mahoney & Thrasher, which will continue their civil litigation and commercial practices in Atlanta.

Eliza “Beth” Holmstrup Stann, ’82, left the Hampton Commonwealth Attorney’s Office for private practice with Downing, Conway & Beale in Newport News. She now works as a consultant part-time at the National Center for State Courts and takes care of her new son, Eric Michael.

Thomas Jackson, ’82, represents the Eighth District in the Virginia General Assembly as a Delegate. He was elected in November 1987. He is the county attorney for Carroll County and represents the school board and Department of Social Services.

Louise A. Schmidt, ’83, left active duty in the Army JAG Corps in April 1987. She continues to reside in Germany as a civilian attorney with the Third Armored Division Legal Office, working in administrative law and claims. She is working on her travel goals in the next 18 months or so: Russia, Yugoslavia, Spain and Egypt.

Sarah Dencke, ’83, formerly an Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney for Fairfax County, has left that post to join the law firm of Klein and Greenspun in Fairfax.

Garry W. Morse, ’83, and his wife moved to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, from Northern Virginia, where he had practiced law for two years. They occasionally miss the States, but sunning, sailing and scuba diving offer more than adequate compensation, especially during the winter!

Sara F. Towery, ’83, and Charles J. O’Hara, ’83, had their first child, Charles “Chad” Towery O’Hara, on March 24, 1987. Sara has become associated with the Falls Church, Va., firm of Hightam, Tramonte & Siciliano, concentrating in real estate and corporate law.

Robert W. Thomas, ’83, has been appointed assistant vice president in the Corporate Trust division of Pittsburgh National Bank, an affiliate of PNC Financial Corp. He joined the bank in 1985 as a trust officer in the corporate trust division.

Ellen M. Kraft, ’83, has resigned as Assistant Public Defender for Northampton County, Va., to devote full time to her solo practice — estates, wills, domestic relations, business law, criminal law.

At a reception in her honor, Dean Sullivan presents Dorothy Carey with a Law School chair after 25 years of service to the Law School.
Alumni enjoy themselves at a luncheon in Atlanta.

Arthur E. Gary, '83, began working at the Office of the Solicitor, Department of the Interior, in August. He works in the Division of Administrative Law and General Legal Services within the Solicitor's Office. He is "continuing to finish" writing his first full-length play.

S. Leigh Fulwood, '83, Seattle just became corporate counsel for GTE Northwest, Inc., a telecommunications company serving six states in the northwest.

James Eckert, '83, has been working with the Monroe County Public Defender's Office in Rochester, N.Y. for two years. He and his wife Mickey have a 3-year-old daughter, Kathryn, and a son, James Gerald, Jr., born July 13, 1987.

Elizabeth Alexander Gibbs, '83, married Daniel Allen Gecker, '82, on May 2, 1987 in Richmond.

Kathleen Styles Carver, '84, is an associate at the Houston law firm of Childs, Fortenbach, Beck & Guyton, practicing commercial litigation and bankruptcy. She is married to Sam Carver, a partner in the firm of Reese, Meyer & Cribs.

Mark A. Clausen, '84, is working at the Seattle firm of Kris J. Sundberg.

Philip Lee Russo, '84, and Jane Tucker, '86, were married on May 16, 1987. Philip works with the Jonathan Corp. of Norfolk. Jane is an associate with Vandeventer, Black, Meredith & Martin in Norfolk.

Nancy Kucan Reed, '84, and her husband, Mark N. Reed '83, had their first child, David Milford, born June 7, 1987.

Elizabeth M. Powell, '84, has moved from Washington to Raleigh, N.C. where she works for Moore and Van Allen in their environmental section.

Steven Michael Miller, '84, married in August 1984. He is a partner in the firm of Leigh and Leigh, Fairfax, Va. The couple has one child: Michael Vernon Miller, born June 12, 1986. His handicap is down to 11.

Jonathan H. Walker, '84, is currently in the midst of a pre-midlife crisis trying to find himself. He is caught musically between the Scylla and Charybdis but is still happy, working as an associate for the law firm of Seyforth, Shaw, Fairweather and Geraldson in Washington.

Virginia Russell Hager, '84, began working for Northeast Kentucky Legal Services, Inc., Ashland, Ky., on May 4, 1987. She holds the position of staff attorney.

Lida Anne Stout Savonarola, '85, is a captain in the U.S. Army JAGC. She is an attorney with the Defense Appellate Division of the U.S. Army Legal Services Agency in Falls Church, Va. On November 8, 1986, she was married to Dennis P. Savonarola, a systems analyst with Titan Systems, Inc.

Adam Gallo, '83, moved to Ryan & Shoss, a nine-member firm in downtown Houston, after leaving Exxon in July 1986.

David R. Pearl, '83, is presently a pilot in the Naval Reserve, San Jose, Cal. His two weeks' active duty was in Japan. His second child was born in May 1986.

Jeannie P. Dahnk, '85, has joined Shackelford & Honeberger of Orange, Va., practicing out of their Locust Grove, Va., office. Until April 1, 1987, she worked in Williamsburg with Anderson, Emmett & Franck.

Mary Kelley Hawthorne, '85, transferred to the Continuing Education and Training Division of the Federal Judicial Center, the research and training agency of the federal courts, on January 18, 1988, where she is a judicial and legal education specialist. She plans and runs circuit workshops for federal district and circuit court judges, as well as other special educational programs.

George Asimos, Jr., '85, is now associated with the law firm of Dilworth, Paxson, Kalish & Kaufman in Philadelphia, practicing real estate development and lending law.
Catherine M. Valentine, '85, Tampa, is a felony prosecutor handling cases ranging from drug trafficking to burglaries to manslaughter. She enjoys Florida and would like to hear from other alumni in the area.

C. Arthur Robinson II, '85, practices alone with an emphasis on tax and real estate planning. He is also a partner in Charles A. Robinson Associates CPA's, which is erecting a new office building in downtown Norfolk.

Melanie A. Godschall, '85, is an assistant senior division attorney, supervising eight staff attorneys at the Department of Labor's Benefits Review Board in Washington. She is engaged to Ken Scheibel, an attorney for the F.C.C.

Deborah A. Bosworth, '85, Dallas, recently joined the national firm of Pettit & Martin, practicing real estate and corporate law. Last summer she spent a few weeks in England and went to Wimbledon. She now lives in Dallas.

Edward James Bell III, '85, and Meredith are enjoying the struggle of establishing a solo practice in Norge, Va.

Timothy M. Anstine, '85, is currently counsel to the newly created Pennsylvania Economic Development Financing Authority, in Harrisonburg, Pa.

Andrew McCready, '85, is currently with the U.S. Department of Commerce's Office of the General Counsel in Washington.

Barbara J. Durette, '85, has opened a law office in Waynesboro, Va. She had previously been an attorney with the Virginia Legal Aid Society, Inc. in Farmville.

Lisa A. Marshall, '85, has joined the Virginia State Bar Disciplinary Department to handle complaints of misconduct against Virginia attorneys. She is married to "Lem" Marshall, an attorney in the Richmond firm of Mays & Valentine.

Thomas Henry Wilson, '85, is the assistant commonwealth's attorney for Accomack County, Virginia.

Alan D. Sundburg, '86, is working with the Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. in Merrifield, Va.

L. Allison Garde, '86, has completed her judicial clerkship with the Tax Court of New Jersey and has joined the firm of Pinney, Hardin, Kipp & Sutch of Morristown, N.J. She will practice in the areas of trusts and estates, estate planning and probate.

John C. Garde, '86, has completed his clerkship with the Superior Court of New Jersey Appellate Division and has joined the firm of McCarter & English of Newark, N.J.

Li. Margaret M. McHugh, JAGC, USNR, '86, is a criminal prosecutor in the trial division of Naval Legal Service Office She has prosecuted 75 cases in nine months.

Robert Acosta Lewis, '86, and his wife Liz had their first child, Zachary Lee Acosta Lewis, on September 19, 1987.

Jerry W. Kilgore, '86, is currently an Assistant United States Attorney for the Western District of Virginia.

Katherine B. Hetfield, '86, will be married on May 7, 1988 to Robert E. Magee of Millville, Del.

M. Ann Wright, '86, is an associate with Hofheimer, Nusbaum, McPhaul & Brenner in Norfolk, Va., after serving a one-year clerkship for the firm. She will concentrate in corporate and real estate law.

Erin A. Sheehey, '87, has joined the Richmond firm of Christian, Barton, Epps, Brent and Chappell as an associate. She will concentrate in tax and estate planning.

Thomas H. Cook, Jr., '87, is clerking for the Hon. Thomas B. Wells, Judge of the U.S. Tax Court.

William Terry Costolo, '87, was admitted to the Florida Bar on Oct. 6, 1987. His daughter, Sarah Ann, was born on Oct. 9, 1987.

Edward Lee Isler, '87, is currently clerking for Judge James C. Turk, chief U. S. judge for the Western District of Virginia. In the fall of 1988, he will join the firm of Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher in Washington.

Kevin T. Gaynor, '87, has been named an associate with the firm of Hofheimer, Nusbaum, McPhaul & Brenner in Norfolk.

Elizabeth L. White, '87, joined McGuire, Woods, Battle & Boothe as an associate in August 1987. She will practice out of their Richmond office.

Evan H. Farr, '87, and Julia Mae-Shen Farr, '87 (formerly Julia M. Shen), were married on May 23, 1987, in Fairfax, Va. After taking the Virginia bar exam in July, the newlyweds flew to Hawaii for their honeymoon. Evan is now working for Kidwell, Kent and Sullivan in their Fairfax office; Julia is working for the Interstate Commerce Commission's Office of Proceedings in Washington.

Julie A. Currin, '87, of Richmond, is practicing full-time in medical malpractice and part-time in wills, contracts, real estate and collections.

Charles H. Brown III, '87, has joined the firm of Dinsmore & Shohl of Cincinnati, as an associate in the litigation department. He lives in Hyde Park.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS

Name ____________________ Class year ____________________

Home Address ____________________
______________________________
______________________________
______________________________
______________________________

City __________ State __________

Zip ____________________

Firm or Employer ____________________

Business Address ____________________
______________________________
______________________________
______________________________

City __________ State __________

Home Telephone ____________________ Business Telephone ____________________

Alumni News

Placement

The Placement Office maintains a mailing list of alumni interested in learning about job opportunities. Mailings occur as the volume of vacancies warrants – usually twice a month. If you would like to take advantage of this service, please return this tear-off to the Placement Office:

Name ____________________ Class year ____________________

Address ____________________
______________________________
______________________________
______________________________

City __________ State __________ Zip ____________________