The new Wolf Law Library was completed in summer 2007. With 540 seats, 2 reading rooms, 12 group study rooms, and 6 lounges (including one with billiards and table tennis), the library provides an elegant and comfortable state-of-the-art center for research, instruction, individual and group study, and social interaction.

Dear Graduates and Friends:

The message I bring today is one of vibrancy and change. Taylor Reveley answered the call to serve as interim president in February 2008 and was sworn in as William & Mary's 27th president this past September. In remarks at his inauguration, he said that he would do “his level best to make a serious difference for the better.” This is a promise I know our former dean will keep. While it was difficult for me to see him go, Taylor truly bettered Marshall-Wythe on all fronts during his decade with us. He was dedicated to rekindling pride in the Law School's unique history and labored long and hard to place Marshall-Wythe on sure footing.

This has been a remarkable time for the School — and for me. We officially celebrated the dedication of our award-winning Wolf Law Library in December. The Annual Fund topped $1.3 million for the second year in a row. Our talented faculty grew by three new members, Professors Timothy Zick, Larry Palmer, and Patty Roberts. The Class of 2011 was chosen from 4,585 applicants, a record for the Law School and an increase of almost eight percent from the previous year despite a nationwide decline. I have been given the opportunity to reconnect with almost 30 years of former students. What a fantastic experience!

The Law School truly is grateful for your support. To quote our former dean, you have made “a serious difference for the better.” I trust you will find abundant good news in the following pages.

Cordially,

Lynda L. Butler
Interim Dean and Chancellor Professor of Law
On December 6, 2007, more than 250 well-wishers gathered at the Law School to welcome, as Law School Dean Taylor Reveley told the assemblage, “our marvelous new Wolf Law Library ... into the ‘family’ of the country’s oldest law school.” College President Gene R. Nichol, College Rector Michael Powell, and members of the William & Mary Board of Visitors joined the Law School community for the celebration.

The new library was completed over the summer of 2007, on schedule and slightly under its budget. During the two-year construction phase, the 1980 facility underwent a floor-to-ceiling renovation and new space was added. The new library totals 57,100 net square feet, a 56 percent increase in size from the old library. The project was the beneficiary of a naming gift from Hank and Dixie Wolf. Hank Wolf, B.A. ’64, J.D. ’66, serves as Vice Rector of the College’s Board of Visitors. He retired in 2007 as Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer of Norfolk Southern Corporation.

In his remarks, Reveley reminded the audience of the history of the law library at William & Mary. In its early days it had no permanent home, “always moving from pillar to post.” The building of the “new” law library on South Henry Street in 1980, he noted, was one of Dean Spong’s many achievements. However, all too soon, ABA accreditors began to criticize the library as “too small and too technologically primitive” for a law school growing steadily in size and scope. With a nod to the spacious and graciously appointed environs of the new law library, Reveley said, “I think to the ‘hounds’ of the accrediting process we can now say: Behold, and be gone!”

Reveley hailed the private donors and foundations as the project’s “staff of life.” Among them, he said, the Gladys and Franklin Clark Foundation made a million dollar gift, the first seven-figure gift in the Law School’s history. The Dean noted the galvanizing effect on fundraising efforts made by the financial support given by Hank and Dixie Wolf, enhanced further by gifts from Norfolk Southern and from the couple’s friends at the company. Contributions from Nicholas St. George, B.A. ’60, B.C.L. ’65, and Ernest W. Goodrich, and entities such as the Beazley Foundation in memory of Chief Justice l’Anson, also played important roles. There were many others, he said, that played roles “in smaller but cherished ways as well.” He said later that the Class of 2007 deserved special thanks as they graduated too soon to enjoy the new library, but had suffered through the hardships of its construction. “I thanked them at graduation and hailed them as the ‘Construction Class’,” he said, “I thank them again now.”

Hank Wolf said that his wife Dixie needed to be given the greater share of credit for the family’s gift. “Dixie taught me a very, very important lesson in life … that there is great joy in giving. That is something that I didn’t really understand as a young man but with the help of my wife over the years I’ve learned that lesson.”

“The one thought that I would like to leave with everyone is that the foundation of our lives was really laid here, at the oldest law school in America,” he said. “We were able to walk a path that someone else had cleared for us … To the extent that we are able to do something to make someone else’s life a little bit better or a little bit easier is an important thing to do. I hope in the years ahead — particularly for the young people here who are going to have the opportunity to enjoy this library — that you will also have an opportunity to do something to make someone else’s life a little easier. I hope you will seize that opportunity because it is really a joy and a blessing.”

ALUMNI WEEKEND 2008

More than 500 alumni and their guests returned on April 11–12, 2008, for a celebration of all things Marshall-Wythe. Congratulations to our reunion classes who continued to raise the bar (and set records) with gifts to the Law School. Special events included the Dean's reception and 5th Annual Public Service Fund Silent Auction, Marshall-Wythe “Generations” (a fond look at the Law School “back in the day”), family picnic, State-of-Your-Law-School conversation with Dean Butler, and reunion dinners.

GRADUATION 2008

O'CONNOR URGES GRADUATES TO PROTECT JUDICIAL INDEPENDENCE

W&M College Chancellor Sandra Day O'Connor exhorted members of the Class of 2008 to enter the profession with pragmatism and with a strong sense of ethics — and to do their part in the protection of American judicial independence. O'Connor addressed more than 200 graduates on May 11, as part of the Law School's 2008 commencement ceremony.

"Tomorrow you will be fledgling members of the legal profession," O'Connor told the graduates. "That means two principal things. First, you'll have to endure an endless number of lawyer jokes." She said she didn't particularly care for lawyer jokes. "Lawyers don't think they're funny and everyone else doesn't think they're jokes," she noted, inspiring laughter from the audience. Striking a serious note, O'Connor said the second thing the graduates should remember is that lawyers must assume major responsibilities that go along with the privileges that are a part of the profession.

"Your first responsibilities, of course, are to your clients," she said. "You have to help your clients resolve their problems, not necessarily their lawsuits," she added. "You have to develop skills as a negotiator. You need some practical experience in advocacy and negotiations."
She said that the client is one of two masters served by a lawyer. “Your other master is the law itself. You have to be true to the ethics and ideals of your profession at the same time that you advocate zealously for your client.”

O'Connor was introduced by Dean Butler. Butler described O'Connor as a fine role model. “With her historic appointment as the first woman on the Supreme Court, she became a role model for all women, for all working mothers,” Butler said in her introduction. “Nor has this role diminished with retirement; rather, it has evolved and grown.”

During her remarks, O'Connor said lawyers need to be mindful of the moral and social implications of their practice, especially their positions as officers of the court. “Don’t get involved as one of the Enron problems, OK?” she asked to applause. “Show some intelligence, some honor, some decency when you practice law.”

She also urged the new lawyers to support the constitutional system of checks and balances, noting that only a third of Americans can name the three branches of government established by the Constitution.

“The main way that the judicial branch can check the other branches is by declaring statutes or executive acts unconstitutional,” she said. “This means that judges have the power to make the other two branches really, really angry. If judges never did that, they probably would not be fulfilling their constitutional duty.”

O'Connor mentioned Brown v. Board of Education and United States v. Nixon as examples of an independent judiciary working to guard rights and to protect against abuses of power. “Judicial independence doesn’t happen all by itself,” she said. “It’s very hard to create and it’s easier than most people imagine to destroy. And that’s where you come in. We need lawyers to get out there and defend the concepts.”

RECIPIENTS OF SPECIAL AWARDS AT GRADUATION

Gilbert Bartlett B.A. ’62, J.D. ’69 received the Law School Association’s Citizen-Lawyer Award which honors a graduate or friend of the Law School who stands squarely in the Jeffersonian tradition of outstanding citizenship and leadership. Dean Butler described him as “the citizen lawyer we hope our students will endeavor to become. His numerous charitable and community endeavors illustrate an abiding commitment to lending his time and talents to furthering the public good.” When told of the award prior to graduation, Bartlett said, “The Citizen-Lawyer Award is a nice surprise. I am pleased to be among the company I am joining by receiving this honor, like William Spong and John Donaldson ’63. They have set an example, and I hope to uphold the tradition of what the Law School continues to train, the citizen lawyer.”

Professor Laura A. Heymann received the Walter L. Williams Jr. Memorial Teaching Award, an award conferred by the graduating class in recognition of outstanding teaching. Joshua Whitley ’08 told the audience that her “love of teaching is self-evident.” She had, he noted, “a profound impact on many, if not most, of the members of the Class of 2008.” Over the course of their three years in law school, he said, Heymann wrote numerous notes to class members congratulating them on their achievements. He quoted Wesley Allen ’08 who recalled that it seemed that she “had memorized the class’s facebook” as she knew each of the students by name on the first day of his torts class. Whitley also quoted Michael Kourabas ’08 as saying that the exam for her trademark course was the hardest he had ever taken but that “somehow, someway, she remains my favorite professor.”
Amy M. Markopoulos '08 and Isaac B. Rosenberg '08 were co-recipients of the Lawrence W. l'Anson Award, an award conferred upon a member, or members, of the graduating class who in the judgment of the Law School faculty have shown evidence of great professional promise. Markopoulos graduated first in the class. She served as Chief Justice of the Moot Court Board and was a Senior Notes Editor on the Law Review. In this latter role, Butler said, her contributions included the introduction of "an innovative concept of 'notes panels' to improve the student note writing process." The Dean quoted a faculty member who said that Markopoulos was one of the strongest students he had encountered during his 18 years of teaching at the Law School and added that she is "admired for her energy and capabilities and regarded with affection." Described by one faculty member as "one of the brightest in a truly exceptional class," Rosenberg served as a Notes Editor on the Law Review and was a member of the Moot Court Board. The Dean noted that he was among only nine in the class to receive honors all four semesters in the Legal Skills Program and also served as an Academic Support Teaching Assistant for Constitutional Law. "A talented writer," said Butler, he had three articles accepted for publication in 2008. "For those of you unfamiliar with the rigors of law school, this is a singular accomplishment."

Sarah A. Fulton '08 received the George Wythe Award, an award conferred upon a member of the graduating class who has demonstrated distinguished leadership for the good of the Law School community. Butler said that Fulton toiled tirelessly for SBA and for other groups such as the Journal of Women and the Law and the Moot Court program. She commended her contributions to a wide variety of endeavors, ranging from the Faculty Hiring Committee to the admission program. Butler quoted a member of the Law School community as having praised Fulton's "selfless leadership." The Dean added that she was a standout among student leaders. "Only a few [SBA presidents] have touched the lives of so many students, faculty, administrators and staff as Sarah has."
Sarah G. Landres '08 and Megan Tumi '08 were co-recipients of the Thurgood Marshall Award for distinguished pro bono work. The award goes to a member, or members, of the graduating class who exhibit the ideals of distinguished public service exemplified by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall. Butler quoted one of Landres's nominators who wrote that she “personifies public service.” The Dean stressed the extensiveness of her endeavors, noting that they included Chair of the Public Service Fund’s Date Auction, Co-founder of the William & Mary chapter of the Student Hurricane Network and liaison to the national organization, participant in Student Legal Services, and election monitor with Virginia Promote the Vote. Landres, Butler said, “seems to have public service as her destiny.” Tumi served as President of the Black Law Students Association. Butler noted that under her leadership an organization renowned for service reached new heights. “I’ve always been impressed with the BLSA’s leadership,” the Dean told the audience, “but I knew something special was happening because of its increased activities not only outside the Law School but within.” Her “heart and passion truly lie in bettering W&M through her dedicated service and leadership,” wrote one of her nominators. “I can think of no one more humble nor more deserving.”

W. Taylor Reveley III received the John Marshall Award, an award conferred upon a member of the faculty or staff for exceptional service to the Law School. Butler shared examples of Reveley’s service in the world outside W&M. He practiced law at Hunton & Williams for 28 years — nine as managing partner — and helped the firm reach “new global heights” during a transitional time in its history. He is an active member of numerous nonprofit boards, eagerly sharing “his vision, vast experience, and keen intellect” to make those institutions better. Turning to his service to W&M, Butler employed one of his favorite expressions (“working doggedly hard”) to describe his efforts as Law School dean. He bettered the Law School on all fronts during the past ten years, she said, while “finding time to provide personal guidance and good cheer to any law student who asked.”

The Law School welcomed a new 1L class August 18. The Class of 2011 was chosen from 4,585 applicants, a record for the Law School and an increase of 7.8 percent from last year's 4,250 applicants. Nationwide, there was a slight downturn in J.D. applicants.

"The large increase in applications for this 1L class is a tribute to the many strengths of W&M Law School," said Faye Shealy, Associate Dean for Admission. "We received 4,742 applications overall for our various applicant groups (J.D. 1L, transfer, visiting, and LL.M.), a record number and a high degree of recognition for our law school. Our incoming students are an impressive group of aspiring citizen lawyers, and we are truly honored that such highly-qualified individuals seek a legal education at W&M."

Thirteen percent are graduates of the College of W&M and the University of Virginia. The leading out-of-state feeder schools with three or more entering students are Brigham Young University, Holy Cross, Cornell University, Dartmouth College, Duke University, University of Florida, University of Maryland at College Park, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania State University, Princeton University, Siena College, and the U.S. Military Academy.

The predominant majors studied by the class were political science, economics, history, English and philosophy. Many in the class distinguished themselves academically. For example, sixteen class members have been honored with membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

In addition to J.D. candidates, the Law School welcomed six transfer students, three visiting students, and four exchange students from China, Mexico and Spain. Sixteen students have joined the Law School community for one year of study as LL.M. candidates. These students are from China, Georgia, Nigeria, Panama, Taiwan and the United Kingdom.

2007-08 STUDENTS’ PERSPECTIVES

LATOGA ASIA ’09 • Hometown: Woodbridge, Va.

Latoya graduated magna cum laude from Virginia Commonwealth University with a B.S. in criminal justice and a minor in Spanish. As an undergraduate she served as President of the National Association of Blacks in Criminal Justice, volunteered with International Student Volunteers in Costa Rica, and was Captain of the VCU cheerleading squad. Before attending law school, Latoya gained legal experience at Brown Martin in Richmond. At W&M she is a member of the William and Mary Journal of Women and the Law, president of the Black Law Students Association, and a Graduate Council Representative. Latoya serves on the boards of the Public Service Fund and the Student Hurricane Network, is a Student Admission Ambassador, and a member of Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity. During summer 2007 she was a Research Assistant for Professor Paul Marcus and studied abroad at La Universidad de San Pablo in Spain. Summer 2008 was spent with McGuire Woods in Richmond.

One of the things that I love the most about being a student at W&M Law is the numerous opportunities to get involved. As a true public servant, I have enjoyed being part of many diverse organizations that are truly committed to helping others, not just in the legal world, but the community at-large. These experiences in public service at W&M have made my law school experience ten times as rewarding.

GREG DEMO ’08 • Hometown: Noblesville, Ind.

Greg graduated with a B.A. from Marquette University with a major in political science and a minor in German. As an undergraduate, he served as a Teaching Assistant, completed numerous independent research projects in philosophy, and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. Following his graduation from Marquette, Greg spent a year as a novice in the Society of Jesus in Detroit and taught English in China. Preceding his enrollment at W&M, he worked as a paralegal for Meckler, Bulger & Tilson in Chicago. While in law school, Greg was a member of the William and Mary Law Review, was a Graduate Research Fellow, and competed on the National Trial Team. In 2006 he was awarded first place in the ABA Labor & Employment Trial Advocacy Competition. Greg was a law clerk with Meckler, Bulger & Tilson in summer 2006 and in the summer before his 3L year worked as a Summer Associate with Sidley Austin, both in Chicago. Following graduation, he returned to Chicago and practiced landlord and tenant law for Cabrini Green Legal Aid as a Public Interest Law Initiative Fellow. He is now working for Sidley Austin focusing on bankruptcy and restructuring work.

Having grown up in Indianapolis, I knew coming to William & Mary that I wanted to work in Chicago. The Admissions Office put me in contact with an alum working in Chicago and with his help I was able to make it happen. By cultivating my ties to Chicago and using W&M connections, I landed a great job and couldn’t be happier.

POST-GRADUATE LOAN REPAYMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

The Loan Repayment Assistance Program Committee selected twelve alumni to receive 2008 awards from the Law School’s Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP).

Initially established to honor Professor Emeritus John Levy, the program is supported by endowments and gifts from alumni and friends. Through the LRAP, graduates who work for private non-profit organizations or government employers are eligible to apply for up to $5,000 annually in loan forgiveness for a maximum of three years. Marshall-Wythe’s LRAP has provided forgivable loans totaling $129,000 to 23 graduates since 2005.
Joshua Whitley '08, chairman of the Graduation Committee, presents Professor Laura A. Heymann with the 2008 Walter L. Williams Jr Memorial Teaching Award during graduation on May 11. The award recognizes outstanding teaching and its recipient is chosen each year by the graduating class. In his remarks, Whitley told the audience that Heymann's "love of teaching is self-evident." She had, he noted, "a profound impact on many, if not most, of the members of the Class of 2008." Heymann "began her career as a law professor three years ago when we began our law studies," he said. " Appropriately, she is honored today along with our class."

The award is named for Walter L. Williams, Jr., a member of the faculty from 1972 to 1991. Following his death after a long illness, a faculty resolution lauded his numerous contributions as a scholar of international law, professor and colleague. Williams taught with "enthusiasm, warmth and good humor," the resolution noted, and was loved and admired by students.

Faculty and staff gathered at the Wren Building in April to celebrate the end of the school year and the contributions of retiring professor Glenn Coven. Coven joined the faculty in 1983, after having begun his academic career at the University of Tennessee. In addition to his teaching and scholarship, Coven served as Director of the W&M Tax Conference from 1989 to 2007, and as Director of the LL.M. program in taxation from 1985 to 1995.

His “exhaustive knowledge of tax law, combined with his superb intellect and dry sense of humor, made him a valued teacher and scholar,” Dean Lynda Butler said. She added that he was “known for speaking his mind when the message was unpopular” and lauded him as someone who always advocated for what he thought was in the school’s best interest.

She shared a number of colleagues’ observations.

One characterized Coven as “a truly complete professor of law.” “As a scholar,” the faculty member wrote, “he has made important contributions in a wide variety of tax areas, from sophisticated corporate transactions to education incentives. As a teacher, he has explained the mysteries of the Internal Revenue Code to a generation of law students and has co-authored a leading casebook in the field.”

Stories about his not-so-retiring nature inspired laughter (and a knowing smile from Coven).

A professor who worked with Coven on the tax conference, wrote that he “has, shall we say, ‘firm opinions’ on certain issues” related to the school’s longest-running annual event. “My favorite quote from Glenn, when presented with an issue or suggestion that he apparently was unlikely to consider further, was ‘Yes, well, thanks for your suggestion and I’ll get back to you on that.’ That was the code language for no.”

Another colleague commended Coven’s “willingness to speak openly” during faculty discussions. “Glenn doesn’t beat around the bush,” the colleague wrote, “he beats the bush. When an issue was before the faculty, Glenn’s reaction was based on what he thought was in the best interests of the Law School. Period.” “How true,” deadpanned the Dean, “I’ve been that bush!”

At the luncheon’s close, Butler expressed the Law School’s appreciation for Coven’s service and presented him with a lamp inscribed with the school’s name and College seal.

FACULTY APPOINTMENTS 2008

Larry I. Palmer and Timothy Zick joined us as full professors. Patty Roberts ’92 has been appointed clinical assistant professor.

Larry I. Palmer leads our new VCU-W&M Health Policy and Law Initiative. He came to Marshall-Wythe from the University of Louisville, where he held the Endowed Chair in Urban Health Policy for four years. He previously was a law professor at Cornell for 27 years. During his time there, he served as Vice President for Academic Programs and Campus Affairs and as Vice Provost. Palmer has written two books, Endings and Beginnings: Law, Medicine and Society in Assisted Life and Death (Praeger Publishers) and Law, Medicine, and Social Justice (Westminster/John Know Press), as well as numerous articles dealing with law, medicine and health policy. He is a graduate of Harvard University and Yale Law School.

Patty Roberts ’92 is Director of Clinical Programs and Director, with Professor Jim Moliterno, of the Legal Skills Program. Roberts’s responsibilities include the development of new clinic initiatives. Among them, she is developing a Veterans Benefits Clinic, which will open its doors in January 2009 as part of the VCU-W&M Health Policy and Law Initiative. She is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman’s College and the Law School. Roberts began teaching in the Legal Skills Program in 1997 and has served in numerous administrative roles at the Law School since 2000.

Timothy Zick joined us from St. John’s University Law School. He is the author of a forthcoming book titled Speech Out of Doors: Preserving First Amendment Liberties in Public Places (Cambridge University Press) and numerous articles and symposia contributions covering a range of issues in constitutional and administrative law. Zick is a summa cum laude graduate of Indiana University and graduated first in his law class from Georgetown. Prior to entering academia, he practiced law at Williams & Connolly in D.C. and at Foley Hoag in Boston, and clerked for Judge Levin H. Campbell of the First Circuit Court of Appeals.

Dean Taylor Reveley presented the 2007–08 St. George Tucker Adjunct Professorship Award to Judge Wilford Taylor, Jr. ’78, on Sept. 6, 2007. The award, created in 1995, is given each year to a member of the adjunct faculty for outstanding service.

Reveley noted that Taylor “has been living the life of the citizen lawyer so prized at William & Mary.”

After graduating from Marshall-Wythe in 1978, he began his legal career in Hampton Roads, first in law practice with Bobby Scott, now a member of Congress, and later as Deputy City Attorney for Hampton. In 1985 he was appointed to serve on the Virginia General District Court for the Eighth Judicial District. He was elevated to the Virginia Circuit Court ten years later.

Taylor has shared his legal expertise with students through his teaching of Trial Advocacy and Therapeutic Jurisprudence courses and currently serves as Director of the Trial Advocacy Program, a post he has held since 2005. In addition, Reveley enumerated the numerous commissions and task forces on which Taylor has served, including, for example, the statewide Commission for Jail and Prison Overcrowding, the Council on Human Rights, the Criminal Justice Services Board, the Task Force for Gender Bias in the Courts, the Judicial Performance Task Force, and the Commission on Virginia Courts in the 21st Century.

The Dean shared excerpts of the accolades that the judge has earned from students. “Great class,” wrote one. “I am much more at ease with the thought of handling a trial now.” Another said, “This professor is outstanding - tremendously gifted, always prepared, most effective as an instructor.” Other comments were more succinct. “Judge Taylor is wonderful,” said one. “Judge Taylor is terrific,” noted another.

Reveley also shared the thoughts of Judge Walter Felton on Judge Taylor’s prowess as a teacher. Felton was instrumental in enlisting Taylor to be a part of the Trial Advocacy Program. According to Felton, “Judge Taylor was quickly recognized by students in Trial Advocacy as an enthusiastic and knowledgeable teacher. His experience on the bench was readily apparent in his instruction. … For students who were a little timid at first in examining witnesses in class, or handling the awkward experience of introducing an exhibit, he was supremely patient and supportive. For those who had had some limited trial work in the summer before the third year or otherwise, he insisted on a higher level of performance. His critiques of students were always constructive. His energy and enthusiasm were infectious.”
The lobby, a prime gathering spot for the Law School community, debuted an updated look in summer 2007 with pendant lighting, refurbished parquet floors, and new furniture.

Classes celebrating reunions in 2008 gave at an historic level. Gifts and pledges by these classes totaled more than $1.1 million by Alumni Weekend. By June 30 these classes set a new record of $1,212,608. Four classes raised the bar for giving on milestone anniversaries — 2003 for highest ever 5th reunion gift, 1998 for highest ever 10th reunion gift, 1983 for highest ever 25th reunion gift, and 1973 for highest ever 35th reunion gift. On hand to present a truly "big check" to Dean Lynda Butler (at far right) on behalf of their classmates, were, from left, Andrea L. D'Ambra '03, David M. Dalke '93, Mark C. Van Deusen '98, Kenneth W. Harrell '88, James D. Penny '83, Ann K. Sullivan '78, and Michael D. Horlick '73.

Professor Paul Marcus was appointed the inaugural recipient of the Herbert V. Kelly, Sr. Professorship for Excellence in Teaching in 2007. Marcus joined the W&M faculty in 1992 as the Hugh and Nollie Haynes Professor of Law. The Kelly Chair will be held for a two-year term by a member of the Law School faculty and was made possible by the generosity of Herbert V. Kelly, Sr. B.A.’ 41, B.C.L. ’43, who was the senior partner at Jones, Blechman, Woltz & Kelly in Newport News until his death in 2007.

According to a spring 2008 study, our student-edited journals rank among the most-cited legal publications. The WM Law Review ranked as the 20th most-cited journal in an evaluation of more than 1,000 U.S. and selected non-U.S. legal periodicals; the WM Bill of Rights Journal ranked as the 4th most-cited constitutional law journal; the WM Environmental Law and Policy Review ranked as the 9th most-cited environmental, natural resources and land use journal; and the WM Journal of Women and the Law ranked as the 3rd most-cited law journal for gender, sexuality, and women's issues.

If we have omitted your name, misspelled it, or failed to place it in the proper category, we apologize. Please let us know of our mistake so that we can correct it for future listings.

Statues of George Wythe, at right, W&M's — and the nation's — first professor of law, and his student, Chief Justice John Marshall, greet all who visit the Law School. The statues were the gift of Robert Friend Boyd B.A. '50, B.C.L. '52 and Sara Miller Boyd '55.
