Dear Graduates and Friends:

Construction at Marshall-Wythe is exciting. This is true whether it involves laying down bricks and mortar, building the Law School's financial foundation, recruiting superb new faculty members, or selecting a new 1L class from among thousands of applicants.

We had many successes to celebrate during the year that ended June 30, 2007. Construction was completed on The Wolf Law Library, a light-filled place brimming with research and study resources. The Annual Fund topped $1.3 million for the first time. A wonderful new professor, Vivian Hamilton, joined us. The Class of 2010, some 216 strong, was chosen from 4,250 applicants (our largest pool of applicants ever).

Let's keep moving the country's oldest law school powerfully into the 21st century!

Cordially,

W. Taylor Reveley III
Dean and John Stewart Bryan
Professor of Jurisprudence
Thanks to the generosity of the Class of 1975, the Law School was able to celebrate on November 17, 2007, the dedication of a lecture hall in honor of former Law School Dean and College President Timothy J. Sullivan.

At their thirtieth law school reunion in 2005, the Class of 1975 presented Sullivan with a piece of mahogany paneling and announced that they would fund, in his honor, the transformation of room 120, one of Marshall-Wythe's largest classrooms, into an elegant, state-of-the-art lecture hall.

"By any measure, Tim was a seminal figure in the life of the Law School and in the life of all of the College," said Dean Reveley at the dedication ceremony. College President Gene R. Nichol and Evan E. Adair '75 joined the Dean in praising the honoree.

“Our first year of law school was Tim’s first year here,” said Adair, adding that his and his classmates' respect for Sullivan sprang from the recognition that he was someone who went “beyond the basic measure.” “It was a pleasure to do something to thank you for all you have done,” Adair said, “and to do so in a way that will help students today and tomorrow.”

President Nichol read from a resolution passed by the College’s Board of Visitors on the morning of the dedication: “The Sullivan Classroom will supply a space for engaged, enlightened, and ennobling legal jurisprudence of the caliber Tim has molded as the John Stewart Bryan Professor …. The Board commends the Marshall-Wythe School of Law for recognizing one of its very best by establishing The Class of 1975 Timothy J. Sullivan Classroom.”

Dean Reveley told the audience of alumni, faculty, and friends that there was rich symbolism in having the Sullivan lecture hall adjacent to The Class of 1983 William B. Spong, Jr. Classroom. “Dean Sullivan and Dean Spong labored back to back, during crucial years when the fate of the modern law school at William & Mary hung in the balance. They did what had to be done to ensure that Marshall-Wythe would flourish.”
NEW WOLF LAW LIBRARY
IMPRESSES STUDENTS WITH DESIGN, IMPROVEMENTS

The new library has proved itself to be a comfortable, state-of-the-art center for research, instruction, individual and group study, and social interaction. Photo by Christopher Cunningham

Students at the country's oldest law school are enjoying one of the world's newest libraries now that construction on The Wolf Law Library is completed. The library is a combination of newly constructed space and a complete floor-to-ceiling renovation of the 1980 facility. Construction began in the spring of 2005, and was completed in summer 2007. The new facility came in under its $16.8 million budget, and totals 56,475 net square feet, a 40 percent increase in size from the old library. The project was the beneficiary of a major gift from Dixie and Hank Wolf B.A. '64, J.D. '66.

Virtually every table and carrel seat in the new library has electricity, and patrons can access the Web from anywhere in the library using wireless internet access. The library has 12 group study rooms, and 342 student lockers. A skylight and large windows bathe nearly each of the library's 568 seats in natural light, including more than 90 casual seats spread throughout six different lounge areas, a unique “chess corner,” and a recreation room with pool and ping pong tables. The library’s generous footprint is large enough to provide office space for approximately 20 student groups, as well as offices for each of the Law School’s four journals. The Nicholas J. St. George B.A. ’60, B.C.L. ’65 Rare Book Room allows visitors to admire some of the most important legal literature from the last 500 years, and other treasures such as the Bible owned by John Marshall, with notations in the great Chief Justice’s hand.

Jim Heller, director of the library and professor of law, helped oversee the project since planning began several years ago. He, along with architects from Hayes, Seay, Mattern & Mattern, William & Mary project managers, and law library staff members, helped make strategic design decisions for the new facility to ensure the ease and comfort of the library’s users. Heller said that students are truly enjoying the brand new library.

“It has a big ‘wow’ factor,” he said.

2L Kristen Clardy said she has been very impressed with the new facility’s increased space and seating. She was especially glad to find electricity available at all of the library’s carrel seats this year so that students will no longer have to crowd around power strips in order to plug in their laptops.

“It’s comfortable. There are enough seats for everybody. You don’t have to feel cramped and really you can go wherever you want,” said Clardy. “You can stay on the main floor if you don’t mind a little bit of noise with the reference desk and the circulation desk, or you can kind of escape to some of the corners of the library if you need absolute quiet all the time. So, it’s been a really nice, comforting change to be able to spend as many hours as we do in such a nice, pretty place.”

In addition to all of the improvements to aid in her studies, Clardy appreciates the recreation and lounge areas for when she needs to take a break.

“I’ve definitely been using all of the extra little perks at the new library,” she said.

3L Mindy Reuben has seen the library transform over the years. She thinks the library will now help draw potential students to the school instead of turning them away.

“It was a distraction, but now it definitely is an attraction for the school,” she said.

ALUMNI WEEKEND 2007

The Law School welcomed more than 400 alumni and guests to Alumni Weekend on April 13-14. Fun and fellowship were in the offing at events such as the Dean’s reception, 4th Annual Public Service Fund Silent Auction, and “pig-nic.” There also was ample opportunity to enjoy the outdoors while playing golf or tennis, enjoying a guided stroll through Colonial Williamsburg, or hiking around Lake Matoaka with Professor John Levy. The weekend featured a new offering, “Marshall-Wythe Generations,” a spirited conversation guided by Dean Reveley during which current students and alumni swapped stories about their experiences here.

Alumni gathered on Saturday evening for reunion dinners and a “cluster celebration” for the classes of 1966, 1967, and 1968. The weekend drew to a close with a late evening reception which offered a chance to savor dessert, coffee, and one last chat before the weekend drew to a close. Mark your calendar for our next Alumni Weekend — April 11-12, 2008. Visit www.wm.edu/law/alumni/reunion/ for more information.

Sue Donaldson, Professor Emeritus John E. Donaldson ’63, and Rene Roark Bowditch ’82 enjoyed catching up at the Alumni Reception on Saturday night.

The Law School — then and now — made for a lively exchange among alumni and students who gathered during the “Marshall-Wythe Generations” discussion. On hand to help lead the dialogue were (from bottom, left) Sarah B. Fulton ’08, Virginia R. Kelly ’07, Thomas B. Kelly ’82 (father of Virginia), Virginia K. Fogg ’87, Rachel Van Der Voort ’97, Michael G. Grabel ’97, (from back row, left) Courtney M. Malveaux ’02, and Stephen A. Cobb ’07.

Judith and Thomas B. Kelly ’82 were among the celebrants at the Class of 1982 reunion.
"The role of citizen lawyer that you are about to assume should include being a teacher," Judge D. Brooks Smith of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit told about 200 graduates at the Law School's commencement on Sunday, May 20, 2007.

Smith recalled a boyhood visit to Williamsburg and the memory of seeing the house of George Wythe, William & Mary's — and the nation's — first professor of law. Smith remembered his awe during that visit at learning that Wythe had given Thomas Jefferson his education in the law.

"It seemed to me then, as it does even now," said Smith, "that a person who could teach the brilliant Mr. Jefferson anything he did not already know must be one gifted teacher."

As Smith delved into Wythe's biography in preparation for his commencement address at the Law School, it became clear to him "that, with all his many public roles — attorney general of the colony, clerk and member of the House of Burgesses, renowned lawyer, and eminent judge — George Wythe remained first and foremost a teacher."

Smith cited numerous examples of how lawyers can be teachers in his remarks to the graduates and the more than 1,000 friends and family members gathered in the Sunken Garden for graduation. They can teach in the traditional sense, he said, passing on their knowledge of the law and professional ethics in the classroom. They can find ways to share their knowledge of our nation's constitutional order, he added, an order that is "at great peril when its citizens either do not understand it, or fail to appreciate its importance in their lives and in the protection of their freedoms." They can teach their clients that lawyers are guardians of the rule of law.

Smith spoke about one of his role models, Judge Ed Becker, a former chief judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, whose memorial service he would be attending the day after commencement. Friend, mentor, and teacher to his many law clerks and colleagues over the years, "he taught through an abiding work ethic, an abiding commitment to public service, and constant interaction with colleagues on a court he loved. He cared deeply about our jurisprudence — about getting it right."
In his own life, Smith noted, he has tried to serve as a lawyer-teacher by traveling to countries throughout the former Soviet Union to participate in judicial training sessions to enhance the rule of law.

Once during his address, and again at its close, Smith conjured up a scene from A Man for All Seasons, the Thomas Bolt play about Sir Thomas More. In it, a young Richard Rich pleads with More, a member of King Henry VIII’s Council, to help him obtain a prominent position. Rich, in Smith’s words, “is bright and scholarly — but very ambitious and desirous of power.”

Twice in the scene, More advises the young Rich to “be a teacher.”

In closing, Smith told the graduates, “I can offer each of you no better counsel than that.”

RECIPIENTS OF SPECIAL AWARDS AT THE LAW SCHOOL’S GRADUATION INCLUDED:

Christopher J. Honenberger, B.B.A. ’74, J.D. ’77, received the Law School Association’s Citizen-Lawyer Award which honors a graduate or friend of the Law School who stands squarely in the Jeffersonian tradition of outstanding citizenship and leadership.

Professor Paul Marcus received the Walter L. Williams Jr. Memorial Teaching Award, an award conferred by the graduating class in recognition of outstanding teaching.

Noellyn Kyung Mee Davies ’07 received the Lawrence W. I’Anson Award for great professional promise.

Maryann Patricia Nolan ’07 and William Yates Durbin ’07 were co-recipients of the George Wythe Award, conferred upon a graduating student, or students, for exceptional service to the Law School.

Alexis Ann McLeod ’07 received the Law School Association’s Thurgood Marshall Award for distinguished pro bono work.

Gloria Todd, Office Manager, received the John Marshall Award, conferred upon a member of the Law School faculty or staff for exceptional service to the Law School.

For photos from Graduation 2007, go to www.wm.edu/law/alumni/graduation.shtml.
Christopher J. Honenberger, an alumnus of the Law School and the College of William & Mary, received the Law School's Citizen-Lawyer Award during the May 2007 commencement exercises. The award was presented by Law School Dean Taylor Reveley. The recipient is chosen by the Law School Association, and is awarded annually to a graduate or friend of the Law School who stands squarely in the Jeffersonian tradition of outstanding citizenship and leadership.

"Chris Honenberger is an enormous credit to his alma mater," said Reveley. "He has been a force in the legal and business life of Virginia for more than 30 years, practicing law with great effectiveness in the commercial, corporate, and real estate areas and serving for seven years as president and CEO of Second Bank & Trust, one of the state's oldest and most respected community banks. Throughout his career, Chris has placed the welfare of his community at the top of his agenda, and has served as chairman of the Germanna Community College Board, president of Orange County's Economic Development Corporation, and president of the Orange County Chamber of Commerce."

"Understanding the history of William & Mary Law School, its extraordinary foundation, and the leadership which has perpetuated learning at the Law School for more than 200 years, and further understanding how important good citizenship is to the legal profession and to society as a whole, I am humbled that the Law School has honored me with this award," Honenberger said. "My alumni efforts started in 1986, serving on the Law School Association Board with Dean William B. Spong, Jr., and this work has been my most rewarding public service . . . truly a blessing. My continued association with William & Mary Law School has been an extremely important part of my life."

Honenberger earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from the College in 1974 and graduated from the Law School three years later. He has, according to Reveley, "remained a vibrant part of the life of William & Mary ever since." Honenberger is a past president of the Order of the White Jacket, the Law School Association, and the Marshall-Wythe School of Law Foundation. The College's Alumni Association honored Honenberger's numerous contributions with its 2001 Alumni Service Award.

In February 2007, the city of Culpeper, Virginia, passed a resolution honoring Honenberger for his leadership in promoting community service, and designated Feb. 13, 2007, as "Chris Honenberger Day." One of the founders and the major promoter of Second Bank & Trust's 100 Club, which is comprised of bank employees who volunteer a minimum of 100 hours per year to community service, Honenberger oversaw a program that documented more than 70,000 hours of community service between June 2000 and February 2007. In the last full year of the program, more than 14,000 hours of community service were documented with 80 percent of employees serving at some level.

"Service became a part of our business culture," Honenberger said, "and it was woven into the company vernacular. E-mails circulated regularly inviting people to join teams for WalkAmerica, United Way and Relay for Life. Service included local parades, benefits for local fire departments, 9/11 support groups, and a host of other causes. E-mails touted 'get your 100 Club hours.' Therefore, the Culpeper town council recognized what the bank had done for the fabric of the community, and I share that honor with my former business associates."

Reveley noted that the concept of the citizen lawyer has its roots in 1779, in the original intent of Thomas Jefferson for the law school he created at William & Mary. "Jefferson and the man he recruited to get the school going, George Wythe, wanted students trained to be not simply skilled practitioners of law but also leaders for the common good of their communities, states and nation," he explained.

"Chris engages his fellow humans with a genuine interest in them and infectious good humor," Reveley said. "This has made him unusually effective at getting good things done."

STUDENTS

The Law School welcomed its new 1L class on August 19. The Class of 2010 was chosen from 4,250 applicants, the largest number ever to apply for admission to our first-year class. The prior record was set for the 1L Class of 2007 which had 4,243 applicants.

"The Law School has many strengths," said Faye Shealy, Associate Dean for Admission. "Overall we received more than 4,400 applications this year for various applicant groups (J.D. 1L, transfer, visiting, and LL.M.) — a record number, and a sincere form of recognition for the School. Our new students are an impressive group of aspiring citizen lawyers. We are honored by the strength of the highly qualified individuals seeking legal education here. They each have our enthusiastic welcome to the William & Mary family and the world of law."

Graduates of William & Mary and the University of Virginia represent 17 percent of the new 1Ls, and leading out-of-state schools (four or more students from each) include Baylor University, George Washington University, University of Florida, University of Maryland at College Park, and UNC at Chapel Hill.

While most of the students earned degrees in political science, economics, history and English, a wide range of majors was also represented, from anthropology and biology to industrial relations and physics. Twenty-seven class members graduated summa cum laude and 16 were honored with membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

In addition to J.D. degree candidates, 13 students joined the Law School for one year of study as LL.M. degree candidates. These students are from China, Germany, South Korea, Ukraine, and the UK. The Law School community also welcomed 14 transfer students, four visiting students, and two exchange students from New Zealand.

2006-07 STUDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

KYLE R. BAHR '08 • Gresham, OR
Kyle earned a B.A. in history from the University of Pennsylvania. He then worked as a legal assistant in the litigation group of the law firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom, in Washington, DC. Kyle also has a great deal of journalism experience, having worked as a sportswriter for various newspapers. At William & Mary he serves as a teaching assistant for the Legal Skills Program, is a member of Law Review, and acts as webmaster for the Therapeutic Jurisprudence Society. During summer 2006 he worked as an intern for Judge Richard J. Leon of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. During summer 2007 Kyle worked as a summer associate for White & Case in Washington, DC.

Our professors care about their students, and not just in the "our doors are open during office hours" sense. I’ve had dinner at the homes of leading scholars and conversations in the halls with professors discussing all sorts of non-law-related topics. My torts professor still emails us with notes of congratulations when our achievements are announced.

ANDREW F. KNAGGS '08 • Springfield, NJ
Andrew earned his B.S. in civil engineering from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and went on to serve as an officer in the Army for nearly 10 years. He began his military career as a combat engineer and eventually became a Green Beret, where he commanded a detachment in the 5th Special Forces Group. He was valedictorian of the Army Special Operations Language Course (Arabic) and was awarded the Bronze Star and Combat Infantryman Badge. At William & Mary, Andrew has served as a student admission ambassador and as the president of the Federalist Society. During the 2006 and 2007 summers, he worked for the law firm of Hirschler Fleischer in Richmond, VA.

There’s an incredible number of opportunities for students to become involved. As a married father of twins, I can say with confidence that no matter how hectic your schedule there will be many opportunities for you to contribute to the Law School community.

ALEXIS A. McLEOD '07 • Mission Viejo, CA
Alexis graduated from the University of California at Irvine with a degree in Spanish and English. There she received the Humanities Scholastic Merit Award and was actively involved in community outreach efforts. At William & Mary, she was a board member of the Public Service Fund, secretary and founding member of the Therapeutic Jurisprudence Society, and an ESL tutor for Refugee and Immigration Services. During summer 2006 Alexis worked for the Public Law Center in Santa Ana, CA. She received one of 50 Equal Justice Works Fellowships awarded in 2007, which allowed her to continue representing low-income individuals living with HIV/AIDS. The Law School recognized Alexis’s distinguished pro bono work with the 2007 Thurgood Marshall Award.

The support and encouragement I encountered in the Office of Career Services was integral to securing my postgraduate fellowship in the public service arena. The OCS staff possesses the breadth of knowledge, tools, and dedication to help students secure employment in law firms, government agencies, or public service organizations.

In fall 2007 the Board of Visitors approved Professor Paul Marcus’s appointment as the first Kelly Professor for Excellence in Teaching. The new professorship was made possible by a gift of $500,000 from the late Herbert V. Kelly, Sr. B.A. ’41, B.C.L. ’43, and will be held for a two-year term by a member of the Law School faculty. Professor Marcus has taught law for thirty-three years and joined the Law School faculty in 1992 as the Hugh and Nollie Haynes Professor of Law. He is the author or co-author of numerous articles and books, including Criminal Procedure in Practice (NITA Press), The Entrapment Defense (Lexis Publishing) and The Prosecution and Defense of Criminal Conspiracy Cases (Lexis Publishing). Professor Marcus has been honored with the University of Arizona’s Distinguished Citizen of the Year Award, William & Mary’s Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award, which is given in consideration of “characteristics of heart, mind, and helpfulness to others,” the Williamsburg Big Brothers Program Mentor of the Year Award, and the 2007 Walter L. Williams, Jr. Teaching Award.

* deceased
The Law School community was greatly saddened by the death of Dick Williamson in June 2007. He joined the faculty in 1970, became a full professor in 1975, and Chancellor Professor in 1986. He also served as the College’s Coordinator of Legal Affairs for ten years prior to his death. Upon his retirement in April 2007, the Board of Visitors recognized his extraordinary contributions during 37 years of service to the Law School and the College, and conferred upon him the title of Chancellor Professor of Law, Emeritus.

Along with Deans Bill Spong and Tim Sullivan, Professor Williamson was present “at the creation” of the Law School’s contemporary renaissance. His dedication to teaching and his expertise in law were matched by an unwavering commitment to Marshall-Wythe’s progress, and during his time on the faculty he served as Dean of Admission, Vice Dean, and Acting Dean.

In a resolution by the Law School faculty, his colleagues observed that Professor Williamson earned a national reputation as an expert on criminal law and procedure but the heart of his career was devoted to preparing students for a life in the law. “His care for his students was old fashioned,” the resolution noted. “It was rooted in an understanding that the law is a tough business and if you wanted to be a great lawyer, you, too, must be tough, learned and wise. He knew the difference between and the relative importance of short term popularity and long term achievement. He gave all his students the truly precious opportunity to learn that difference too.”

Professor Williamson was a member of the American Law Institute, a fellow of the Virginia Law Foundation, and served on the Foundation’s Committee on Continuing Legal Education. From the mid-1980s until 2002, he was Reporter of Decisions for the Court of Appeals of Virginia, which spanned 37 volumes of reported decisions.

William & Mary honored Professor Williamson in 2004 with the Thomas Jefferson Award, which recognizes members of the faculty for significant service, influence, and leadership.

LAW SCHOOL WELCOMES PROFESSOR HAMILTON TO FACULTY

The Law School welcomed Associate Professor Vivian E. Hamilton to the faculty in August 2007. Professor Hamilton will teach Family Law, Federal Civil Procedure, and Advanced Family Law Advocacy (a simulation-based course that introduces students to domestic relations practice). Her scholarship centers on theories of family law, marriage, and the socio-economic implications of family policy.

Professor Hamilton received a B.A. from Yale College and is a cum laude graduate of Harvard Law School. At Harvard, she was Articles Editor of the Harvard Civil Rights — Civil Liberties Law Review and served as a student attorney for the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau. She was awarded the National Association of Women Lawyers' Outstanding Woman Graduate Award at commencement.

After earning her law degree, Professor Hamilton clerked for Judge Gladys Kessler of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. She later practiced law at Steptoe & Johnson LLP in Washington, DC, then at the Legal Aid Society of Washington, DC. Professor Hamilton taught previously at American University's Washington College of Law and at the West Virginia University College of Law.

Professor Hamilton was recently elected to serve on the Executive Committee of the Section on Family and Juvenile Law of the Association of American Law Schools, and she chairs the Section's Scholarship Review Program. She is on the boards of several nonprofit organizations, including the Frederick B. Abramson Memorial Foundation, which awards college scholarships to seniors in the DC public school system and public interest fellowships to graduating law students, and the Black Student Fund, which provides funding and support for lower-income African-American students to enable them to attend private school. She is a former member of the Board of Directors of the West Virginia chapter of the ACLU.

2006-07 ST. GEORGE TUCKER AWARD PRESENTED TO ELIZABETH M. SCHMIDT

Dean Reveley presented the 2006-07 St. George Tucker Adjunct Professorship Award to Elizabeth M. Schmidt during a luncheon at the Wren Building on September 8, 2006. The award, created in 1995, is given each year to a member of the Law School's adjunct faculty for outstanding service.

Professor Schmidt serves as counsel and vice president of Guidestar, an organization that assembles a database of financial and operational reports on public charities. She has taught at the Law School periodically, beginning in 1981. Over the years, Professor Schmidt taught courses in employment law, family law, juvenile law, legal skills, legal writing, and, most recently, nonprofit law and practice.

Dean Reveley said Professor Schmidt has made extremely significant contributions to many organizations throughout her career, in addition to the Law School. Before beginning her teaching career at William & Mary, Professor Schmidt practiced law in Minneapolis for two years. Additionally, she has worked as a strategic and legal consultant to many nonprofit organizations and has served as a board member for others in the local community as well as nationally. Professor Schmidt has coordinated educational outreach programs for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, presented materials for continuing judicial education for the National Association of Women Judges, and developed plans for bringing charities' reports to the general public through the Online Giving Project.
Patrons access the new Wolf Law Library from the Law School's entrance hall. The entrance hall was transformed in summer 2007 with new lighting fixtures, furniture, and mahogany paneling, carrying elegant design elements from the new Library into our original South Henry Street building.

REPORT OF GIFTS
The Law School wishes to recognize its benefactors — both living and dead — whose cumulative giving over the years has been at the level of $25,000 and above. Members of these gift clubs have shown extraordinary support of this institution.

The Marshall-Wythe Society recognizes donors who have made cumulative gifts of $100,000 or more; the Thomas Jefferson Society recognizes donors who have made cumulative gifts of $50,000 to $99,999; and the Woodbridge Associates recognizes donors who have made cumulative gifts of $25,000 to $49,999.

Please note that pledges and deferred gifts are not included when identifying the members of these groups.
