The new Law Library, slated for completion in spring 2007, is the culmination of a decade of planning. At left in photo, two reading rooms on the first and second floors offer views of the wooded ravine to the east of the Law School. Below them, on the ground floor, a large study area shares the outdoor vista and also has easy access to rooms dedicated to group study. Other features of the new library include a rare book room, abundant seating throughout the building with Internet access, and space for growth in collections.

Dear Graduates and Friends:

"Here we will form such characters as may be useful in the national councils of our country," wrote George Wythe about the law school he led at William & Mary in the late eighteenth century. Wythe's instruction of John Marshall, among others, laid the foundation for American legal education.

The Law School remains vigorous some 227 years later and there is good news on many fronts. A new Law Library is emerging on our southernmost flank. Three new professors — all with exceptional credentials — have joined us. Applications remained robust with some 20 applicants for each of our first-year seats. The Annual Fund surged past $1 million for the fourth year in a row.

I hope you will find much in these pages to inspire your continued encouragement and support.

Cordially,

W. Taylor Reveley III
Dean and Professor of Law
2005-06 SELECTED HIGHLIGHTS

FACULTY

Three professors accepted offers to join the faculty, bringing with them exceptional credentials: Angela M. Banks, B. Glenn George, and Nathan B. Oman. For more, see page 35.

Members of our faculty continued to help resolve leading issues of the day, produced a striking quantity and quality of scholarly publications, and remained in great demand as participants in symposia and as visiting professors at other law schools. For faculty biographies and a list of faculty publications, visit our web at www.wm.edu/law/facultyadmin/fulltime.shtml.

AWARDS AND HONORS

General Anthony Zinni, USMC (ret.), was in residence on September 26-27, 2005, as the Carter O. Lowance Fellow in Law and Public Policy. The fellowship honors the extraordinary contributions of the late Carter O. Lowance, who served as chief of staff to six Virginia governors and was executive vice president of the College. General Zinni served as commander-in-chief of the U.S. Central Command, carried out diplomatic missions around the world, and wrote a bestselling memoir titled Battle Ready (co-written with Tom Clancy). His lecture on “America’s Role in a Changed World” was to a standing-room-only audience. During his visit, General Zinni also was a guest speaker in several classes, shared his thoughts on international affairs with students and faculty over coffee and lunch, and met with student leaders and Army ROTC cadets for a discussion about leadership challenges.

Judith S. Kaye, chief judge of the state of New York, received the 2005-06 Marshall-Wythe Medallion on April 10. The medallion, the highest honor given by the faculty, recognizes outstanding leaders from the bench, bar, and academia. In remarks prefacing presentation of the medallion, Dean Reveley outlined the trajectory of Judge Kaye’s remarkable career as the first woman associate — and later, first woman partner — of one of Manhattan’s leading law firms. In 1983 she became the first woman to be appointed to the New York Court of Appeals, the state’s highest court, and, in 1993, became the first woman to serve as that court’s chief judge. Judge Kaye has written extensively about legal process, state constitutional law, women in law, professional ethics, and problem-solving courts.

Haynes Professor of Law Paul Marcus was honored with an Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award at the College’s 2006 commencement exercises. The award is given in consideration of “characteristics of heart, mind, and helpfulness to others.” Professor Marcus has been active in Habitat for Humanity and the Big Brothers Mentoring Program. He also founded and directs the Law and Literature Program at the Virginia Peninsula Regional Jail and currently serves as co-reporter, with University of Oklahoma Associate Law Professor Mary Sue Backus ’01, for the National Committee on the Right to Counsel.

Henry C. Wolf ’66 was inducted as an honorary member of Order of the Coif at the Law School’s May awards ceremony for the Class of 2006. Coif chapters may elect to honorary membership “those who as lawyers, judges and teachers attained high distinction for their scholarly or professional accomplishments.” Mr. Wolf is the vice chairman and chief financial officer of Norfolk Southern Corporation and also serves as vice rector of the College’s Board of Visitors.

Justice Sandra Day O’Connor addressed the Class of 2006 at the Law School’s commencement exercises. She was installed in April 2006 as the College’s 23rd chancellor after serving nearly a quarter of a century on the Supreme Court.

Recipients of special awards at commencement included:

Howard J. Busbee J.D. ’67, M.L.T. ’68, received the Law School Association’s Citizen-Lawyer Award which honors a graduate or friend of the Law School who stands squarely in the Jeffersonian tradition of outstanding citizenship and leadership. For more, see page 19.

Davison M. Douglas, Hansen Professor of Law and director of the Election Law Program, received the Walter L. Williams Jr. Memorial Teaching Award, an award conferred by the graduating class in recognition of outstanding teaching. It is the fifth time Professor Douglas has received this award.

Professor Ronald H. Rosenberg, Professor of Law and director of the American Legal System Graduate Program and Foreign Exchanges, received the John Marshall Award, conferred upon a member of the faculty or staff for exceptional service to the Law School.

Megan E. Bisk ’06 received the George Wythe Award, conferred upon a graduating student for exceptional service to the Law School.

Shari L. Diener ’06 received the Lawrence W. I’Anson Award for great professional promise.

Stephanie L. Spirer ’06 received the Law School Association’s Thurgood Marshall Award for distinguished pro bono work.

In addition to these lectures, the Law School hosted numerous symposia, lectures, and visiting scholars to enrich the academic experience beyond the classroom. For our upcoming events calendar, go www.wm.edu/law/events.shtml.
GIFTS

Annual giving totaled $1,268,234 for the year ending June 30, 2006. This is the fourth year in a row that annual giving has surpassed $1 million. For more, see page 42.

Reunion classes celebrated their ties to Marshall-Wythe with combined gifts of $803,170 and the Class of 2006 showed its school spirit with a gift of $95,184. For more, see pages 43 and 44.

The Law School's Loan Repayment Assistance Program, created in 2005, awards up to $5,000 in loan forgiveness annually to alumni who take jobs with high social value but low pay. In its second year, six new awards were made and four were renewed from the previous year.

The Black Law Students Association presented a bronze plaque to the Law School in December 2005 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Rosa Parks' refusal to give up her seat on a bus in Montgomery, Alabama. The plaque is hung across the hall from the Spong Classroom and includes excerpts of President Bill Clinton's remarks from the 1999 presentation to Ms. Parks of the Congressional Gold Medal ("[w]e must never, ever forget about the power of ordinary people to stand in the fire for the cause of human dignity") and a quote from Eleanor Holmes Norton ("[f]or many of us, the priceless thing she gave was the sense that you can free yourself").

FACILITIES

Thanks to the generosity of the Class of 1975’s 35th reunion gift, classroom 120 was transformed during summer 2006 and is now an elegant, state-of-the-art lecture hall. It will be dedicated in November 2006 as the Class of 1975 Timothy J. Sullivan Classroom. The Sullivan lecture hall is adjacent to the Spong Classroom, a fitting reminder of two dedicated champions of the Law School whose back-to-back deanships transformed Marshall-Wythe.

Work on the new Law Library continued apace. In July 2006, a temporary library opened in the newly constructed addition. Shelving, furniture, equipment, and part of the collections were moved to the addition from the existing library facility in late June. Some parts of the collection are stored temporarily offsite. Gutting of the 1980 library facility began in late summer as a prelude to its complete renovation. A splendid new library will emerge when what is newly built and what is newly renovated are seamlessly joined in spring 2007. The project is the culmination of a decade of planning, and the expansion should accommodate anticipated growth in book and journal collections, as well as new and existing technologies.

For an on-going update on construction, and to view the latest photos, go to www.wm.edu/law/lawlibrary/construction/.

The library will have reading rooms overlooking the wooded ravine to the east and the new rare book room will display treasures such as Chief Justice John Marshall’s family Bible, and pleadings signed by George Wythe. Currently, the library can seat 437 people; the new facility will add seating for nearly 100 more. There will be 70 lounge seats in five different areas, 60 seats in 12 group study rooms, 162 carrel seats, all with power, and 199 table seats, all but 12 with power. The four journals will each have office space and a large suite will be available for the school's 33 student groups. The new library also will have two computer labs with 37 seats. One lab will be set up for training on online services such as LexisNexis and Westlaw. Other computers throughout the library also will be available for patrons.

The library is designed for those who use it, and makes staff readily available to assist students and other patrons. For example, the grand staircase is located in the middle of the library; to use it you must pass the Circulation Desk, the Interlibrary Loan Office, and the Reference Desk. The plans also ensure that all staff and public areas comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

STUDENTS

Some 204 members of the Class of 2009 joined the student body in August 2006. The class has a median undergraduate G.P.A. of 3.64, a median LSAT of 165 (the 93rd percentile), and its members possess a remarkable range of backgrounds and talents. In addition, thirteen students comprised the LL.M. Class of 2007, the largest LL.M. class in our history. For more, see page 22.

Members of the Class of 2005 were working in 26 states, D.C., Germany, and India as of mid-February 2006. Almost half are working in private practice (48.5%). Judicial clerkships (19.5%) and government positions (14.2%) were the next major sources of employment. For more, see page 25.

To help students keep body and soul together while doing good for little (or no) pay, the Law School came up with $277,313 in public service fellowships in summer 2006, using resources drawn from the Public Service Fund, the Dean's discretionary cache, and federal work-study monies. Ninety students received fellowships to work in 78 organizations in 19 states, D.C., Argentina, China, and South Africa. A full public service grant during was $3,600. For more, see page 26.

Our four student-edited journals continue to add luster to the Law School's reputation. The William and Mary Law Review was ranked in spring 2006 as the 20th most-cited legal journal in an evaluation of more than 900 U.S. and selected non-U.S. legal periodicals. In the same study, in a ranking of the most-cited student-edited journals in their subject areas, the William & Mary Bill of Rights Journal was ranked 3rd, the William and Mary Journal of Women and the Law was ranked 5th, and the William and Mary Environmental Law and Policy Review was ranked 10th.

Thirty-three service, special interest, and competitive organizations are now active at the Law School. Among those recently added to the roster: the Animal Law Society, the Election Law Society, and the Therapeutic Jurisprudence Society. For more on student organizations, go to www.wm.edu/law/students/.

The Benjamin Rush Scholars traveled to New York City in April 2006 to present the Benjamin Rush Medal for outstanding contributions to American health care to New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer. Each year, students who have distinguished themselves by their research on health law and policy are designated as Benjamin Rush Scholars. The 2005 medal was awarded to former FDA commissioner David A. Kessler, M.D.
Some 99 participants from 42 U.S. law schools journeyed overseas for the 2006 Summer Law Program in Madrid. Twenty-eight students hailed from William & Mary. Five Spanish law students participated at no cost thanks to fellowships honoring the late Walter L. Williams, Jr., a William & Mary law professor and the program’s founding director.

Two William & Mary students to date have taken advantage of the recently established Law Studies Abroad Program. The program offers third-year law students the opportunity to pursue advanced legal study in Austria, Japan, New Zealand, and Spain. Three exchange students joined us for fall 2006: one from an Austrian law school, and two from Spanish law schools.

PROGRAMS

The Courtroom 21 Project recently announced a name change. It is now known as the Center for Legal and Court Technology, a name which better describes its burgeoning programs and research initiatives.

Each year the Center puts the latest technology to the test in a laboratory trial conducted by students in the legal technology course. In 2006, in a simulated case brought under the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Center tested how assistive technologies can be used to provide equal access to justice for judges, lawyers, witnesses, and jurors who have mobility, sight, or hearing impairments that traditionally have made participation in court proceedings difficult. The trial was conducted with the support of numerous companies and organizations, including the Justice Department’s Disability Rights Section, the American Foundation for the Blind, and the WGBH Media Access Group.

The Center continued to support many courtrooms and judges in the U.S. and Canada and to provide certification and training in technology-augmented trial practice. The Center held its fifth conference on privacy and public access to court records, conducted with the assistance of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, a courtroom construction and renovation conference, and its annual Court Affiliates Conference.

The Center recently agreed to assist the Social Security Administration in its effort to improve the use of technology in disability hearings.

The new Election Law Program (ELP) continued its efforts to serve as a resource on election law for U.S. state court judges.

In August 2005 ELP organized a program for the Conference of Chief Justices with presentations by leading experts. In July 2006 ELP prepared a memorandum that offered basic, practical advice for judges who may be called upon to resolve legal issues in connection with the November 2006 elections. This memorandum was sent to all state Supreme Court chief justices so that they could distribute the memorandum to each state court judge within their state. The program also is on schedule to complete the first edition of the Election Law Manual in 2006, a publication that will give state court judges an overview of how best to approach a variety of issues. While a limited number of copies will be printed initially, the Manual also will be available online (with updates regularly made to the web version). Planning is underway to launch a web-based election law curriculum in 2007 that will address some of the most crucial issues in election-related litigation and will include both written materials and video webcasts of lectures by experts.

The Human Rights and National Security Law Program continued its mission of providing a forum for discussion and debate of major issues facing the U.S. and the world community through the second year of its Distinguished Lecture Series. Speakers included John D. Altenburg, Jr., the retired Army major general in charge of the trials of terror suspects at Guantanamo Bay, Anthony Zinni, former commander-in-chief of the U.S. Central Command, and Shirin Ebadi, the 2006 recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize. International Law Clinic students, under the direction of Program Director Linda A. Malone, prepared legal memoranda for the Iraqi court trying Saddam Hussein. Marshall-Wythe was one of only three law schools in the country that worked for the U.S. Justice Department to provide legal support to the Iraqi Special Tribunal.

The Property Rights Project and the Institute of Bill of Rights Law presented the Second Annual Brigham-Kanner Property Rights Conference in October 2005. During the conference James Parker Hall Professor Richard A. Epstein of the University of Chicago was honored with the Brigham-Kanner Prize. Professor Epstein has written on a wide range of legal and interdisciplinary topics and is director of the University of Chicago's Olin Program in Law and Economics. The annual conference seeks to bring together leading members of the bench, bar, and academia to explore recent developments in takings law and other areas of the law affecting property rights.

The Institute of Bill of Rights Law continued to inspire lively discussion and debate through its conferences, activities, and visiting scholars program. Its Supreme Court Preview, which brings leading journalists, scholars, and advocates to the Law School each fall, celebrated its eighteenth year in 2005. In addition, the Institute hosted major conferences on reforming parentage laws and law and morality, and, with the Property Rights Project, presented the Second Annual Brigham-Kanner Property Rights Conference. The Institute also sponsored public debates, a visiting scholars program, and a comparative constitutional systems workshop. Along with Moot Court, the Institute's student division sponsored the Bushrod Moot Court competition and a related symposium on law school efforts to block military recruiters from campus. The Institute's student division also sponsored a biweekly speaker series and the Hampton Roads Schools Project.

William & Mary law students have had a unique opportunity to work in specialized alcohol or drug courts under the supervision of judges, prosecutors, and public defenders thanks to the Law School's Therapeutic Jurisprudence Program. This externship is the first of its kind in the country. In addition to the externship, the Program recently co-sponsored a program with the Children's Advocacy Law Society titled "The Nuts and Bolts of Family Drug Treatment Courts." The Program's plans for 2007 include a summit on family violence and the creation of an online journal for student scholarship in the field.

ALUMNI WEEKEND 2006

The Law School welcomed more than 500 alumni and guests to Alumni Weekend on April 7 - 8. Both days offered alumni chances for fun and fellowship at events such as the Dean's reception and "pig-nic" on the South Henry Street lawn. There was ample opportunity to enjoy the outdoors while playing golf or tennis, strolling along Duke of Gloucester Street with a tour guide, or hiking around Lake Matoaka with Professor John Levy. Our alums and families also lent their enthusiastic support to the special 5K run/walk sponsored by our dedicated students to benefit the National Bone Marrow Donor Registry.

On Saturday all were welcome to relax, reminisce, and enjoy the fare served up by Colonial Williamsburg's award-winning chefs at reunion dinners and a "cluster reunion celebration" for the classes of 1970, 1971, and 1972. This is the first time the Law School has hosted a "cluster reunion," a celebration for classes that graduated in consecutive years. From all accounts it was a success, and we look forward to hosting more in the future.

REUNION CLASS PHOTOS

The photos of the classes of 1970, 1971, and 1972 were taken at the 35th Cluster Reunion dinner and are by Jeff Aldrich. All other class photos are by Randy Searle.

Class of 1970, 35th Cluster Reunion
Howard J. Busbee received the 2006 Citizen-Lawyer Award during commencement exercises in May. The award was presented by Jon M. Mahan '96, president of the Law School Association. The award goes annually to a graduate or friend of the Law School who stands squarely in the Jeffersonian tradition of outstanding citizenship and leadership.

"The 2006 recipient of the Citizen-Lawyer Award is a man whose colors are certainly green and gold," Mahan said. "Howard Busbee hit the trifecta at William & Mary, earning his bachelor of arts in accounting, his juris doctor and his Master of Laws in Taxation. Howard's service to William & Mary has been remarkable, and his list of contributions is quite long. He is currently chair of the William & Mary Endowment Association, past president of the Alumni Association, co-director of the William & Mary Tax Conference, and a former member of the Law School Foundation and the Annual Fund boards. His contributions also include service on the Dean's Search Committee, the committee that brought Taylor Reveley into our midst."
In addition to being a triple recipient of degrees from William & Mary, Busbee is a CPA and a member of the Virginia Bar. After William & Mary, he joined PricewaterhouseCoopers, where he spent 33 years, rising to become a tax partner, the firm’s southeast regional tax director and a member of the PWC board of partners. He retired from Pricewaterhouse and returned to his alma mater and to Williamsburg, where he joined the College’s Mason School of Business, first as assistant dean for Master of Accounting and Undergraduate Business programs, and then as a visiting professor at the business school. Busbee has written for the William & Mary Law Review, as well as other publications, including Business and Bottom Line magazines, and the Atlanta Business Chronicle.

Busbee has served on a number of nonprofit boards, including Theatre Virginia, the United Way of Richmond, Virginia Special Olympics, the Williamsburg Community Health Foundation, and the Foundation for Hospital Art. He is the owner of a restored fire engine, which he makes available to charitable groups and for the entertainment of children of all ages.

“Receiving the Citizen-Lawyer Award from the William & Law School is the high-water mark in my life at the Law School and the College,” Busbee said. “I am both surprised and honored.”

“Our concept of the citizen lawyer has its roots in the original intent of Thomas Jefferson for the law school he created at William & Mary in 1779,” said Dean Reveley. “Jefferson and the man he recruited to get the school going, George Wythe, wanted students trained to be not simply skilled practitioners of law but also leaders for the common good of their communities, states and nation,” Reveley explained. Among the school’s first students was John Marshall, later the great Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court – a paradigm of the citizen lawyer.

“Howard Busbee has lived the life of the citizen lawyer so prized at William & Mary,” said Reveley, “and his law school is very proud of him.”

— Ann C. Gaudreaux
In a year when the number of law school applications around the country declined by more than six percent, the Law School's pool of highly qualified applicants rose to 4,209 (approximately 20 applicants for each of the 204 first-year seats).

From a high-end fashion model to legal interns to military personnel to a Peace Corps volunteer, the Class of 2009 has a varied make-up that will contribute to both the learning environment in law school and the professional realm after graduation. Outside the classroom and workplace, this year's first-year class possesses a plethora of talents: singing in a capella, gospel choirs, glee clubs, concert choirs, chorales; dancing; performing in bands and theatre; demonstrating physical prowess in nearly every varsity sport, as well as Tae Kwon Do, Judo, and ultimate Frisbee; and helping the community through dedicated service to a vast number of organizations, including the Humane Society, YMCA, Habitat for Humanity, Red Cross, and the Special Olympics.

There are also 13 LL.M. students and three exchange students from Austria, China, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Italy, Great Britain, Japan, Kazakhstan, Korea, and Thailand.

Associate Dean for Admission, Faye Shealy, notes, “Critical to the future of the Law School is its ability to attract strong applicants and to continue our tradition of outstanding students. For this we need the involvement of our alumni, faculty, and students — we are most able to attract the candidates whom we want to enroll when the entire Law School community pulls together to explain the Law School’s virtues.”

2005-06 STUDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

ERNEST FREEMAN III '07

Trey earned his B.A. in political science from Stanford University, where he was a member of the varsity football team. Prior to law school he was a free agent selection by the Baltimore Ravens. During his time with the Ravens, he also interned for Senator Elizabeth Dole in Washington, DC. Trey then worked as a paralegal in the Office of the General Counsel for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. He was elected president of the Student Bar Association (SBA) for 2006 and is a staff member of the William and Mary Environmental Law and Policy Review. During summer 2005 he worked for two professors and participated in the William & Mary Summer Study Abroad Program in Madrid. During summer 2006 Trey worked for Venable in Baltimore.

A wealth of stimulating activities is essential for any well-functioning law school. Every student organization at William & Mary has activities open to all students. The SBA works diligently to make each student's experience truly unique.

KELLY L. HART '07

Kelly earned a B.A. in English magna cum laude from Connecticut College, where she was awarded membership to Phi Beta Kappa. During college she captained the varsity women's volleyball team, worked as a writing tutor, rowed on the women's crew, and studied Czech and Russian literature in Prague. As a first-year law student, Kelly served her classmates as a Student Bar Association representative. She is an active participant of the Public Service Fund, was selected as a dean's associate and student admission ambassador, is a team and board member of the Moot Court Program, and was named a Benjamin Rush Scholar. During summer 2005 she interned in Washington, DC, with the U.S. Trade Representative for Southeast Asia. During summer 2006 Kelly worked for ABC News' Law and Justice Unit Correspondents in New York City.

I adore Williamsburg. With so much history, beauty, and character, it is the perfect place for law school. I enjoy studying in the quaint, student-friendly atmosphere. There are plenty of unique restaurants and coffee shops and a few solid watering holes! I love leaving the library and going for a run through Colonial Williamsburg on my way home — it's safe and refreshing.

JACQUELYNNE M. JORDAN '07

Jacquelynne earned a B.A. in communications summa cum laude from Columbus State University in Columbus, GA. She then worked as a paralegal in Atlanta and volunteered as a guardian ad litem for local underprivileged children. At William & Mary, Jacquelynne serves as a teaching assistant for the Legal Skills Program, is an articles editor for the William and Mary Journal of Women and the Law, served as secretary of the Student Bar Association, and competed in the Jessup International Moot Court Competition as a member of the Moot Court Team. During summer 2005 she worked as a judicial intern for Magistrate Judge Tommy E. Miller '73 of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia and studied in Spain. Jacquelynne divided her time during summer 2006, working with a private law firm in Orlando and the U.S. Attorney's Office in Atlanta.

I have found the Legal Skills Program to be one of the most enjoyable and practical experiences of law school. Working in a simulated small law firm composed of students and faculty has provided an incomparable learning experience — one that has given me great confidence for work in the world of law.

Patrick F. Speice '06, at right, presents Professor Davison M. Douglas with the Walter L. Williams, Jr. Teaching Award at the May 2006 graduation ceremony. The award recognizes excellence in teaching and its recipient is chosen each year by the graduating class. This is the fifth time Dave has received the award.

Professor Douglas is a scholar of constitutional law and history who has focused in particular on the interplay of race and law in American history. His books include Reading, Writing, and Race: The Desegregation of the Charlotte Schools (University of North Carolina Press, 1995) and Jim Crow Moves North: The Battle Over Northern School Desegregation, 1865-1954 (Cambridge University Press, 2005). He is director of the Election Law Program, a joint venture of the National Center for State Courts and the Law School, which seeks to provide practical assistance to state court judges who are called upon to resolve election law disputes.

NEW FACULTY 2006-2007

ANGELA M. BANKS will join us as an assistant professor in spring 2007. She is currently the Reginald F. Lewis Fellow for Law Teaching at Harvard. Angela received a B.A. summa cum laude from Spelman College, a Master of Letters from the University of Oxford, where she studied as a Marshall Scholar, and a J.D. from Harvard Law School, where she served on the Harvard Law Review. Following graduation from law school, she practiced law at Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering in Washington, D.C., and clerked for Judge Carlos F. Lucero of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit. From September 2002 to August 2005, Angela was the legal advisor to Judge Gabrielle Kirk McDonald of the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal in The Hague.

B. GLENN GEORGE has joined the faculty as a professor of law. She received a B.A. with honors from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and a J.D. cum laude from Harvard Law School. Prior to entering academia she practiced law with Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher in Los Angeles. Glenn was a member of the Marshall-Wythe faculty from 1983-88 and has also taught law at the University of Colorado and the University of North Carolina. While on the Colorado law faculty, she served as the vice president for human relations and risk management for the University of Colorado systems. While on the Chapel Hill law faculty, Glenn was interim general counsel for the university for a time.

NATHAN B. OMAN has joined the faculty as an assistant professor of law. He received a B.A. cum laude from Brigham Young University, where he was a Presidential Scholar, and a J.D. cum laude from Harvard Law School. While at Harvard, Nate served on the Articles Committee of the Harvard Law Review and as editor of the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy. Before joining the faculty, he practiced law at Sidley Austin Brown & Wood in Washington, D.C., and clerked for Judge Morris Sheppard Arnold of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

ST. GEORGE TUCKER AWARD PRESENTED TO CHRISTIE S. WARREN

Dean Reveley presented the 2005-06 St. George Tucker Adjunct Professorship Award to Christie S. Warren during a luncheon at the Wren Building on August 29, 2005. The award, created in 1995, is given each year to a member of the Law School’s adjunct faculty for outstanding service.

Christie has taught at the Law School since 2001. Her career, said Reveley, has been one of “striking accomplishment.” Before coming to William & Mary, he noted, she tried over 100 cases working as a public defender in California and also served as a Supreme Court Fellow at the U.S. Supreme Court. Her career-long interest in the judiciary and the rule of law has taken her around the world as an advisor to Rule of Law programs. Reveley went on to note that Christie “has taught an extraordinary range of courses and seminars” in international law and has played a pivotal role in developing internships for law students at international organizations in Europe, Latin America and China.
