Mark A. Lemley

Mark Lemley is the William H. Neukom Professor of Law at Stanford Law School, the Director of the Stanford Program in Law, Science and Technology, and the Director of Stanford's LLM Program in Law, Science and Technology. He teaches intellectual property, computer and internet law, patent law, and antitrust. He is of counsel to the law firm of Kecker & Van Nest, where he litigates in the areas of antitrust, intellectual property and computer law. He is the author of six books (all in multiple editions) and 62 articles on these and related subjects, including the two-volume treatise IP AND ANTITRUST. He has taught intellectual property law to federal and state judges at numerous Federal Judicial Center and ABA programs, has testified twice before Congress and three times before the Federal Trade Commission on patent, antitrust and constitutional law matters, and has filed numerous amicus briefs before the U.S. Supreme Court, the California Supreme Court, and the federal circuit courts of appeals. He was named one of the top 25 intellectual property lawyers in California (2003) and one of the 100 most influential lawyers in California (2004) by the DAILY JOURNAL. He has chaired or co-chaired more than two dozen major conferences on antitrust, intellectual property and computer law, including Computers Freedom and Privacy '98.

Professor Lemley received his J.D. from Boalt Hall School of Law at the University of California at Berkeley, and his A.B. from Stanford University. In 2002 he was chosen Boalt's Young Alumnus of the Year. After graduating from law school, he clerked for Judge Dorothy Nelson on the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, and has practiced law in Silicon Valley with Brown & Bain and with Fish & Richardson. Until January 2000, he was the Marris McLean Professor of Law at the University of Texas School of Law, and until June 2004 he was the Elizabeth Josslyn Boalt Chair in Law at the Boalt Hall School of Law, University of California at Berkeley.

The Wythe Lecture

The George Wythe Lecture Series, begun in 1976, is named in honor of the occupant of the first Chair of Law at the College of William & Mary and in the United States. George Wythe was not only the law teacher of distinguished patriots – Jefferson and Marshall among them – but also one of the most distinguished lawyers, statesmen, and judges of the late colonial and early national periods.
