SELECTED HIGHLIGHTS
1999-2000

• More than 74% of the Class of 2000 contributed to the 3L Class Gift, with pledges exceeding $114,000, an all-time high.

• The Annual Fund achieved a record high of $717,000, an increase of 35% over the last fiscal year.

• William & Mary's Moot Court team received a number of honors and awards, including first place in the American Bar Association's National Appellate Advocacy Competition.

• By February 2000, 98.9% of 1999 graduates reporting to the Office of Career Planning and Placement had secured jobs or were pursuing advanced degrees.

• Construction began on the North Wing, which will provide much needed classrooms and office space for the Law School.

• Five highly qualified new professors were recruited to join the faculty in the 2000-2001 academic year.

• William & Mary Law School moved up three places in U.S. News & World Report's national ranking of law schools, resulting in a current ranking of 29th.

• Support for Summer Public Service grants rose from $2,500 to $3,000 per student (for a 10-week position).
Dear Graduates and Friends,

The Annual Fund grew magnificently over the last fiscal year — up 35%. We're rolling toward our goal of one million dollars in annual contributions by June 30, 2003.

This infusion of resources helps in many ways. Two examples, both begun during the summer of 2000: (1) Research grants for faculty members doubled in amount, moving us from near the bottom among law schools to a respectable level. This has been a tonic for faculty morale, retention and recruiting. (2) The amount of each of our Summer Public Service grants for students (for a 10-week position) rose from $2,500 to $3,000. This marks a real step forward, since $2,500 had been the figure for almost a decade.

The Class of 2000 made a galvanizing gift to the school: $114,250, pledged by 74% of the class. These new graduates understand that a law degree is like a unit of currency. Its value fluctuates with people's perception of the distinction of the school that granted it. The Class of 2000 wants the value of William & Mary law degrees to keep appreciating.

The Law School is an extremely efficient, cost-effective operation. Even so, we simply lack the resources to do some very important things. For instance, we cannot offer enough financial aid to our students, and we are not able to help repay school debt burdening those of our graduates interested in practicing law in ways poorly compensated, but with high social value (for example, prosecutors and full-time pro bono lawyers).

It is good to be frugal, but it's not good to let frugality slip into financial anorexia. Distinction in almost every sector of American life costs money. There is certainly no "free lunch" for law schools. In an increasingly transparent national market, law schools are judged by faculty, students, employers and the media in light of many measures, most of them heavily influenced by the adequacy of operating budgets.

The University of Virginia Law School has more than twice as many students as Marshall-Wythe, while Washington & Lee Law School has almost one-third fewer students. Large UVa Law School (state-owned) and small W&L Law School (privately-owned) come together at one crucial point. Both believe it is important to spend a lot more per student each year than William & Mary Law School is now able to commit. If we had annual operating funds comparable to UVa's and W&L's, we would have about five million dollars more with which to work each year!

Thanks for your continued support of a school launched brilliantly in 1779 by Jefferson and Wythe, and now moving with great enthusiasm into the new century.

Cordially,

W. Taylor Reveley III

R. Harvey Chappell, Jr. '50 received the Citizen-Lawyer Award.
R. HARVEY CHAPPELL, JR.
2000 CITIZEN-LAWYER AWARD RECIPIENT

The William & Mary Law School Association presented R. Harvey Chappell, Jr. with the ninth annual Citizen-Lawyer Award. Mr. Chappell received his B.A. in 1948 and B.C.L. in 1950 from The College of William & Mary. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa and the Order of the Coif. The College honored him in 1968 with the Alumni Medallion, The Society of the Alumni’s highest award. In 1984, as he was awarded an honorary Doctor of Law degree from the College, it was said of him, “In your community, your energy and selflessness know no bounds in service to your fellow man. You personify good citizenship in all that you do and are.”

In addition to his successful legal career as a partner in the firm of Christian & Barton, L.L.P. in Richmond, Virginia, Mr. Chappell had been deeply committed to serving his community. After serving on the Alumni Board for six years, as well as Alumni Society President for two years, Mr. Chappell was a member of the Board of Visitors, past Rector, a founding member of the Law School Foundation, past president of the Law School Association, member of the Endowment Association Board and past editor of the Law Review, of which he is now the honorary life editor. Mr. Chappell’s support of the College and the Law School includes the Chappell Research Fellowship, the Chappell Research Scholarship for undergraduates, the Chappell Summer Research Fellowship for undergraduates, the Ann C. and R. Harvey Chappell Fellowship Endowment, the Chappell Law Scholarship and the Ann C. Chappell Fund.

Mr. Chappell has united his love of law with a desire to help his community. He served on the Board of Directors of Richmond Eye Hospital as well as the Board of Trustees of Children’s Hospital, acting as president for five years. A member of the Sons of the Revolution, he was president of the Virginia Chapter from 1970 to 1972. He has also been a member of the Board of Visitors of Virginia State University and a trustee of the Westminster-Canterbury Foundation. He served in the United States Air Force from 1944 to 1946.

Formerly on the Board of Governors and Chairman of the Standing Committee on Federal Judiciary of the American Bar Association, Mr. Chappell is a member of the Bar Association of the City of Richmond, serving as president from 1969 to 1970. Additional memberships include the American College of Trial Lawyers, where he was a member of the Board of Regents and president, the Virginia State Bar Council, the International Association of Defense Counsel, the American Bar Foundation, the American Law Institute and the Virginia Law Foundation. He was president of the State Bar in 1977. He has also served on the Bar Association’s Executive Committee, receiving the William B. Spong, Jr., Professionalism Award in January of 1999.

ALUMNI WEBSITE UPDATE

The Law School Alumni and Development website is constantly evolving. It now includes a long-anticipated feature not to be missed — an on-line alumni directory.

Have you been searching for a lost classmate? Would you like to refer a client to a Marshall-Wythe alumnus who practices family law in Hawaii? Try the on-line alumni directory, available only to Marshall-Wythe graduates and students.

To access this database, visit the William & Mary Law School website at www.wm.edu/law/alumni. After clicking on Alumni Directory, use the user id and password provided in the October Annual Fund letter to search for Marshall-Wythe alumni. While you’re looking, verify your own information and notify us of any updates.

If you have ideas for ways to improve the website, please contact us at www.wm.edu/law/alumni. Let us know how we can better serve you!
In the early '90s, the Law School launched the Mock Interview Program to prepare students for employment interviews. Barbara Hays Kamp '75, a partner with David, Kamp & Frank in Newport News, has participated in this program since its inception. Returning to campus each spring, she coaches first-year students on ways to improve their interview skills. Last year, 15 Marshall-Wythe graduates helped 110 students in this program.

Students prepare for the mock interview just as they would for a meeting with a prospective employer — submitting a resume, doing research on the person with whom they will meet and learning about the firm in question. The volunteer conducts a traditional on-campus interview with each student and then critiques his or her performance. "The mock interview has very much the feel of a real interview," says Kamp, "but the feedback period becomes much more relaxed. The students ask detailed questions about the substance and style of their presentation. They really want to know how they can polish and improve their performance in an actual interview."

For William & Mary students, the opportunity to receive constructive feedback lessens the stress associated with the job search and builds confidence in their ability to compete for top jobs. As 2L Ada Marie Walsh explains, "The whole process was professional and seemed very real. It gave me confidence going into the fall on-campus interviews with real employers."

On August 14, 2000, the Class of 2003 arrived at William & Mary Law School. The class was chosen from almost 2,500 applicants. Its members came from diverse backgrounds, bringing a wealth of talents and experiences to the school.

The first-year class includes a:
- city planner
- investment specialist
- nurse
- published poet
- police officer
- reporter
- youth minister
- software engineer
- and an international sales manager.

The Class of 2003 at a glance:

- Class Size: 180
- Median GPA: 3.3
- Median LSAT: 163 (90th percentile)
- Colleges and Universities Represented: 109
- States/Countries Represented: 31 states, D.C., Canada and England
- Number Holding Graduate Degrees: 16

- Students of Color: 21%

Our LL.M. program in the American Legal System adds to this rich mix with international students from Germany, Japan, England, China and Egypt.
Our curriculum has grown significantly. It now includes about 100 courses offered each year and about 150 offered over a three-year cycle. Some of the most recent additions are:

- Advanced Patent Law
- Bioethics, Medical Ethics and Law
- Citizen Lawyers: America’s Leaders
- Comparative Constitutional Systems
- Congress and the President
- Directed Research
- Drafting for the Corporate/Finance Lawyer
- English Legal History
- Federal Tax Practice Clinic
- Lawyers in Practice Settings
- National Security Law
- Selected Problems in Corporate Law
- Toxic Torts
- Transnational Insolvency
- Youth Law

In addition, our award-winning Legal Skills Program continues to provide hands-on instruction in professional skills and responsibility in small group settings during the first two years of law school.
FROM THE STUDENTS’ PERSPECTIVE

“I have truly enjoyed my time at William & Mary School of Law. I talk to students at other schools who do not have a positive thing to say about their law school experience and I feel sorry for them. I selected William & Mary because it provides challenging academics in a friendly environment — and it has lived up to those expectations! I value my law school experience for the strong legal skills I have developed, as well as the many friendships I have made.”

— Erin Manahan 3L, President, Student Bar Association

“Apprehension best describes my condition when I received my first assignment as a law firm summer associate. I was not sure I had the requisite skills to accomplish what was asked of me. As I read through the partner’s memorandum, however, it occurred to me that I had done similar tasks numerous times during my legal skills training. I literally treated the assignment as one for legal skills. As the summer progressed, I began to appreciate just how much William & Mary’s unique program prepared me to succeed in a law firm setting.”

— Brian Holmen 3L, Editor-in-Chief, William and Mary Law Review

“William & Mary was my first choice for law school and I have never doubted that it was the right choice. I have been impressed from the start by the quality of education and abundance of opportunities provided by the Law School. The professors, the staff in Career Services, and the legal skills program have been a tremendous resource. And, when most people recall their first year of law school, they remember all the hard work; when I think back on my first year of law school, what stands out most are the new friends I made through my participation in the Black Law Students Association. They have become part of my family and I will cherish them always.”

— Jammie Jackson 2L, President of the Black Law Students Association
CITIZEN LAWYERS: THE COUNTRY'S LEADERS

In 1779, Thomas Jefferson was governor of Virginia and a member of William & Mary's Board of Visitors. He took the lead in establishing the program in law at W&M. Jefferson's goal — his original intent for the Law School — was that it train people to be constructive citizens and leaders in their communities, states and nation, as well as good legal craftsmen. George Wythe, the first leader of William & Mary's program in law, gave brilliant substance to Jefferson's idea.

In spring 2000, a new class on Citizen Lawyers began at the Law School. Taught by Dean Taylor Reveley, the class explored whether Jefferson's and Wythe's intent that William & Mary Law School train citizen lawyers remains realistic in the early 21st century. The class looked at the different roles historically played by lawyers in the United States, the extent to which lawyers have traditionally been leaders in both public and private spheres, why legal training and experience prepare lawyers unusually well for constructive citizenship and leadership, and whether obstacles to being a citizen lawyer have become so great in today's society that it is quixotic to keep pursuing the Law School's original intent.

The Law School’s Moot Court Program swept to one of its most glittering years ever in 1999-2000. Elliott Buckner, Jeff Chamberlain and Jason Rylander won the American Bar Association’s National Appellate Advocacy Competition in Chicago on April 8, 2000, beating 106 other teams and sweeping aside the seemingly invincible Texans (one Texas law school or another has won during 14 of the last 17 years). This ABA competition is one of the two major tournaments held each year in the United States. In the other — the National Moot Court Tournament — Cameron Cobden, Terry Driskill (best oralist) and Laura Rugless won the regionals in Richmond in January 2000 and ended up octofinalists in New York City, out of a field of more than 140 teams. The St. John’s Bankruptcy Tournament, in turn, was captured by our Heather Conoboy, Joe Grogan and Bill Ruhling (best oralist). A William & Mary team also made it to the quarterfinals of the Duke Medical Ethics Moot Court Tournament, and another of our teams was among the top ten at the University of North Carolina Constitutional Law Tournament.

A FOND FAREWELL

Connie Galloway, our Associate Dean for Administration, left the academic world at the end of June to become chief operating officer for a company in Richmond. What an enormous force for effective administration and what a splendid friend and colleague she was during her 17 years at the Law School! Chief financial officer, human resources vice president, facilities vice president, dean of students, institutional memory, wise counselor, the one to whom you would go if no one else knew the answer or seemed to be able to cope — Connie was all this and more. Her sense of fairness, good humor and kindness, as well as her willingness to make tough decisions when tough decisions were needed, made her a cherished member of the Law School administration. We will miss her dearly.

On June 28, 2000 Associate Dean Connie Galloway broke ground for the new North Wing addition.
PRIVATE SUPPORT

THE IMPORTANCE OF PRIVATE GIVING

Gifts from alumni and friends are vital to the Law School's success. This year, the Law School's operating budget of $13 million depends on private gifts totaling more than $2 million.

Many programs at the Law School will benefit from the generosity of alumni and friends during 2000/2001. Those programs include:

- Institute of Bill of Rights Law
- Summer Research Grants for Faculty
- Summer Public Service Fellowships for Students
- Library Acquisitions
- Courtroom 21 Project
- Office of Career Planning and Placement
- Four Student-Edited Law Journals:
  - William and Mary Law Review
  - William and Mary Bill of Rights Journal
  - William and Mary Environmental Law and Policy Review
  - William and Mary Journal of Women and the Law
- Student Organizations
  (e.g., Black Law Students Association, National Trial Team)
- Moot Court Program
- Legal Skills Program
- LL.M. Program

The FirmMate Program is a participation program for organizations with four or more alumni. This program encourages alumni at qualifying organizations to strive for 100% alumni participation in support of the Law School Annual Fund. If you are interested in more information on this program, please call Liz Orye at 757-221-3815 or send an email to: ekorye@wm.edu.
