Dr. D. W. Woodbridge

By WILL MOLINEX

WILLIAMSBURG—Dr. Dudley Woodbridge, who has taught for 25 years at William and Mary, was honored in a ceremony by state and college officials as one of America's great law teachers.

Woodbridge, who retired from the law school to become president of the college, was recognized for his efforts to improve the school's facilities and for his contributions to the education of law students.

Woodbridge's retirement was marks the end of an era at the school, as he has been a fixture on the Williamsburg campus for over three decades.

In his final address to the students and faculty, Woodbridge expressed his gratitude to them for their support and encouragement during his tenure as dean.

He also spoke about the importance of legal education and the role of the law in society.

Woodbridge's legacy will be remembered for his dedication to the education of future lawyers, and for his commitment to the betterment of the school and its students.
