The Wythe Lecture

The George Wythe Lecture Series, inaugurated in 1976, is named in honor of the occupant of the first Chair of Law at the College of William and Mary and in the United States. George Wythe was not only the law teacher of distinguished patriots -- Jefferson and Marshall among them -- but was himself one of the most distinguished lawyers and judges of that late colonial and early national period.

Douglas Laycock

Douglas Laycock is the Alice McKean Young Regents Chair and Associate Dean for Research at the University of Texas School of Law in Austin. He is a graduate of Michigan State University and the University of Chicago Law School. Following graduation from law school, he clerked for Judge Walter J. Cummings of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. He practiced briefly, then joined the faculty at the University of Chicago Law School. He joined the University of Texas faculty in 1981.

Professor Laycock is the author of The Death of the Irreparable Injury Rule, which received the Scribes Book Award in 1991. He writes frequently on the topic of religion in American life. His recent articles have been published in the Iowa Law Review, the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy, the Columbia Law Review, and Constitutional Commentary. We are pleased that the published version of today's talk will be published in the William & Mary Law Review.
