WILLIAMSBURG — Gerald Ford, at the College of William and Mary today, delivered an attack on the economic policies of the Carter administration.

Ford, in an address to several hundred students and faculty members, described the policies of the administration as leading the country into a recession. He said that the unemployment rate was too high, and that the inflation rate was too low.

"The economic policies of the past year have failed," said Ford. "They have led to a recession that has cost us billions of dollars."

Ford also criticized the administration for its handling of the energy crisis. He said that the Administration's policies had led to a shortage of energy and a price increase.

"The Administration has failed to deal with the energy crisis," said Ford. "It has led to a shortage of energy and a price increase that has hurt the American people."

Ford ended his speech by warning the students and faculty members that the future of the country was in their hands.

"The future of our country is in your hands," said Ford. "You have the power to make the right decisions for the future of our country."

The speech was held in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.
