This forum is being supported by its ambitious program to support improvements in the teaching of legal ethics.

HOSTED BY

THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM & MARY
SCHOOL OF LAW

Legal ethics and professional responsibility, long treated as a second-class subject by legal education, has begun to receive the attention that the subject demands. Its centrality to the relationship between the practicing and academic branches of the legal profession is undeniable.

This conference is about the teaching of legal ethics and professional responsibility. It promises to be a lively event that will combine important scholarship about teaching professional responsibility with descriptions of recent, teaching-oriented curricular innovations in the field.

The conference is being fully supported by a generous grant from the W.M. Keck Foundation. The goal of this conference and of a second one to follow in 1997 will be to advance excellence in the teaching of professional responsibility by facilitating both a high level exchange of information and a scholarly interchange among leaders in the field.
