Alex C. Castles is a distinguished legal historian and Bonython Professor of Law at the University of Adelaide, South Australia. He is a law graduate of the University of Melbourne and the University of Chicago and is a former president of Australian Universities Law Schools Association. He was a founding member of the Australian Law Reform Commission and served from 1975 until 1981. In 1970 he was U.N.I.T.A.R. Senior Research Fellow in New York.

Professor Castles is a prolific author; he has written or co-authored six books on Australian constitutional law and history. He is the Australian Editor of Oceana Publications' "Constitutions of the World" series and has published articles and chapters in publications in Australia, Canada, Great Britain and the United States.

Professor Castles is visiting William and Mary until mid-February as part of the Australian-American Bicentennial Exchange sponsored by the United States Information Agency. The U.S.I.A.-supported William and Mary-Australian exchange program presents opportunities for faculty members in government, law and economics to lecture, teach and conduct research on issues relating to the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution and the bicentennial of Australia's founding.

THE INSTITUTE OF BILL OF RIGHTS LAW

The Institute of Bill of Rights Law is primarily oriented to education and research on constitutional liberties, especially First Amendment speech and press. Other important interests are legal history, legal writing, and professional responsibility. It serves both the legal and journalism professions in manners consistent with its ties to a professional school and an institution of higher education. Founded in 1982 at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law from the Lee Memorial Trust Fund, the Institute emphasizes scholarship, quality research, and public education.
