Remembering Brown v. Board of Education

Thursday, February 26, 2009

3:30-5:00 p.m.

William & Mary Law School, Room 127

2009 marks the 55th anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Brown v. Board of Education that held state-mandated school segregation unconstitutional. Four William and Mary Law School professors -- Larry Palmer, Paul Marcus, Linda Malone, and Davison Douglas -- will offer their reflections on their personal experiences with school desegregation in the 1950s and 1960s. Each of these four professors wrote an essay for the recently published book, Law Touched Our Hearts: A Generation Remembers Brown v. Board of Education. A reception will follow the program at which copies of the book will be on sale. Books are available at the William & Mary Bookstore.

The program is sponsored by the Law School Dean's Office, the Black Law Students Association, the Institute of Bill of Rights Law, and the Human Rights and National Security Law Program.

This program is free and open to the public. No registration necessary. For more information call 757/221-3810 or email IBRL@wm.edu.
