1980

Classes to Start at New W&M Law Site

Richmond Times-Dispatch

Repository Citation

Copyright © 1980 by the authors. This article is brought to you by the William & Mary Law School Scholarship Repository. https://scholarship.law.wm.edu/wspong
Classes to Start at New W&M Law Site

WILLIAMSBURG — The news was good in the United States has moved into its new building.

The new site is being developed by the most technically advanced in dedication ceremonies.

William B. Spong Jr., law dean, pointed to a new stack so pleased with this addition. The new stacks, which have been scattered throughout the building, are functional, enough for the first 1000 cases.

He pointed out a rare book room, decorated in 18th century style.

There are five rugs in the library room, one of the few in the nation. Financed through private funds, the new law library is located adjacent to the National Center for State Law.

Spong, who was a student in the new building, said that he hoped the new facility would serve as a model for the future.

The new library is part of the multimillion-dollar renovation of the College of William and Mary.

The library can accommodate about 100,000 volumes and currently has 50,000. On the lower level of the library, there is a classroom wing and the national center building.

There is a rare book room, decorated in 18th century style.

He pointed out a rare book room, decorated in 18th century style.

There are five rugs in the library room, one of the few in the nation. Financed through private funds, the new law library is located adjacent to the National Center for State Law.

Spong, who was a student in the new building, said that he hoped the new facility would serve as a model for the future.

The new library is part of the multimillion-dollar renovation of the College of William and Mary.

The library can accommodate about 100,000 volumes and currently has 50,000. On the lower level of the library, there is a classroom wing and the national center building.