ABA PRESIDENT GIVES SHERWELL LECTURE

The second annual Sherwell Memorial Lecture on contemporary issues in the legal profession was delivered October 10 by William T. Gossett of Detroit, current president of the American Bar Association. He spoke on changing professional responsibilities of the bar, under the title, "In the Keeping of Lawyers," a phrase used by the late Justice Felix Frankfurter.

The Sherwell lectures were established by a fund given to the College for the use of the Law School, and inaugurated in 1967 with an address by Professor Walter Gellhorn of Columbia University. The lectures are a memorial to the family who owned and lived in the George Wythe house in Williamsburg during the nineteenth century, through a gift of Mrs. Maria Sherwell Baumert of Long Island.

SBA WINS ABA SECOND SPOT

Runner-up position among more than 100 student bar associations was won by law students from the College of William and Mary at the national convention of the American Bar Association in Philadelphia in August.

The law student division of the ABA, which annually sponsors the competition between student bar groups, gave first place to the University of Wisconsin and runner-up to the College’s Marshall-Wythe School of Law. These are the only rankings given in the yearly recognition of significant activities by law student organizations in the United States.

Andrew D. Parker, Jr. of Lakeland, Ohio, current president of the William and Mary student bar, represented the law school at the ABA meeting. Other local law students attending included Gilbert Barlett of Chevy Chase, Md., national vice president for the fourth judicial circuit, and Glenn J. Sedam of Houston, Tex., chairman of the international law committee for the national student group.

LUNCHEON

graduate of the University of Utah and Columbia Law School. He practiced law in New York City from 1929 to 1947, before moving to Detroit as vice president and general counsel of Ford Motor Co. He resigned this position in 1962 to accept a position in the Kennedy and Johnson administration as Deputy Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, with the rank of ambassador. More recently he has been of counsel to the Detroit firm of Dykema, Wheat, Spencer, Goodnow and Trigg.

Gossett is a former president of the National Legal Aid and Defender Association and of the American Bar Foundation, as well as chairman of the national board of the United Negro College Fund. He has received the Amity Award of the American Jewish Congress and the "layman of the year" award of the Detroit Council of Churches. He holds honorary degrees from Bethany College, Coe College, Detroit College of Law, Duke University, Kalamazoo College, Oakland University, Tuskegee Institute, University of Utah and Wayne State University.
FOURTEENTH ANNUAL TAX CONFERENCE SET FOR DEC. 7

Aided by a grant under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, the fourteenth annual tax conference of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law will be held in the Virginia Room of the Williamsburg Conference Center on Saturday, December 7. Dr. Thomas C. Atkeson, Chancellor Professor of Taxation, Emeritus, will once more be the master mind, assisted by Associate Professor John E. Donaldson, Assistant Vice-President of the College, and Associate Professor Emeric Fischer. Dean Joseph Curtis is ex-officio a member of the directors of the conference, and Mrs. Marcia Miles is secretary.

A registration fee of $8 per person will cover the conference and the luncheon in the North Ballroom of the Conference Center. Registration will begin at 8:30 A. M. and the conference will conclude in the late afternoon.

Topics of the conference appear in the program printed above, and the professional data on the speakers follows:

JAMES P. BOYLE—District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Richmond District, Richmond, Va., since June 6, 1965. Prior IRS experience includes that of Internal Revenue Agent, Atlanta District and Ass’t District Director, Nashville District. Member of the Georgia Bar and Certified Public Accountant (Georgia). B., Johns Hopkins Univ., LL. B., Univ. of Virginia. Firm: Bauknight, Prichard, McCandlish and Williams, Fairfax, Virginia.

LAURENCE N. WOODWORTH—Chief of Staff, Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, U. S. Congress. Prior to his appointment as Chief of Staff on July 31, 1964, as successor to Colin Stam, who retired on that date, he participated in all tax legislation considered by the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee since 1944. A. B., Ohio Northern Univ., Masters degree in Government Management, Univ. of Denver, and Ph.D., New York University.
J. R. Zepin, '65 and John E. Donaldson, '63 appear in new roles in the Law School picture this fall. Professor Donaldson is one of the assistant vice-presidents of the College, and Mr. Zepkin is teaching the introductory course for first-year law students.

TWO LAW ALUMNI IN NEW ROLES

With a general revision of the administrative structure of the College announced late this summer, Associate Professor John Donaldson, '63, became one of the two assistant vice-presidents of the College. A faculty member of the Law School since 1966, Donaldson has A.B. from Richmond College and LL.M. from Georgetown University as well as professional law degree from Marshall-Wythe. During the past academic year he has been engaged in a special research project in tax law in collaboration with Professor A. B. White of Southern Methodist.

Zepkin, who received his law degree from the College in 1965, has been associated with alumni Hy Wax, '63, and John Stephens, '65 in a Williamsburg law firm. He also serves as secretary for the Williamsburg Bar Association, and is handling the first-year course in Introduction to Law, for non-law students.

NATIONAL MOOT COURT ENTRY "IN TRAINING"

Edward Newton of Norfolk, William C. Field of Charleston, W. Va. and John Gaidies of Williamsburg are at work on the Law School's entry in the 1968 National Moot Court competition. The subject for argument this fall involves the power of the Secretary of Defense to order non-conscientious objectors to service in Viet Nam.

The Marshall-Wythe entry will meet the University of Richmond in a preliminary round on November 15 in Charleston, West Virginia, and will represent appellee, the United States of America in this round.

PUBLIC CONTRACTS ISSUE LAUNCHES FALL LAW REVIEW

Half a dozen articles on government contract law make up the symposium for the fall issue—Volume 10, Number 1—of the William and Mary Law Review, due from the printers late in October. This will be the second time in three years that a symposium on the subject has been featured in the Law School quarterly, the response to the first such issue having been so enthusiastic.

For the fifth time in three years, a conference on government contracts or subcontracting will be held at the Williamsburg Conference Center under the joint sponsorship of the Law School and Federal Publications, Inc., of Washington. This conference will be December 9-13, and will follow the pattern of previous years in which specialists in legal and managerial problems of government contracting or subcontracting will be discussed in a series of panels.

Following the December program, the Law School as co-sponsor will go far afield, to join in a conference on engineering problems of government contractors which Federal Publications will give in Phoenix, Ariz. This conference will be January 13-17, 1969. Almost equally far afield will be a March 10-14 conference on government contracts to be held at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Henry B. Keiser, president of Federal Publications and by now virtually a professional associate of the Law School, undertakes the planning and coordinating of all of the conferences. The course directors for the December conference will again be Paul H. Gantt, '42, in association with Edward A. Babineau, senior contract specialist of the Raytheon Company. Dr. William F. Swindler of the Law School is general administrator for the program.

Main topics of the subcontracting course are described below:

Monday, December 9

9:00 TYPES OF SUBCONTRACTS

Consideration of various subcontract types: fixed- price, cost, incentive, time and materials, redeterminable, etc. How each type is formed, its precise application and performance characteristics, its allocation of risk, its cost and profit features. When, and under what circumstances, should each type be used—relationship of the subcontract to the content of the prime. Specific study of profit determining techniques such as weighted guidelines, performance incentives, award fee, value engineering incentives. Teaming agreements, associate contractors, and other special arrangements.

Raphael Mur, Asst. General Counsel: Grammar Aircraft Engineering Corp.

1:30 LEGAL ASPECTS OF SUBCONTRACTING

Detailed consideration—from the standpoint of both the prime contractor and the sub—of the Uniform Commercial Code's effect on the execution and performance of subcontracts, including the Code's relationship to everyday operations. When a subcontract is formed; what determines its precise terms; and how is it to be interpreted. Use of purchase orders as subcontract documents: advantages and dangers of standard purchase orders; the "battle of the forms." The letter subcontract.

Henry B. Keiser, President: Federal Publications, Inc.

4:45 CLINIC

Messrs. Mur and Keiser

Harry Benoit, Director of Contract Operations: Barnes Engineering Co.

Tuesday, December 10

9:00 SUBCONTRACTING TERMS & CONDITIONS

A thorough and precise study of standard and non-standard critical subcontract clauses—evaluating their advantages and disadvantages to both the prime and sub. What each party should try to include in the subcontract, what each should resist, why, and what alternatives can be offered. The "real world" of terms and conditions negotiation; guidelines for analyzing subcontract provisions; pitfalls and recommended practices. Required "flow-down" clauses in Govt contract situations.

Norman P. Singer, Vice President—Contracts: Allied Research Associates, Inc.

1:30 SELECTING THE SUBCONTRACTOR

Methods of locating, evaluating and selecting subcontractors for both standard and sophisticated procurements. Bidders' lists, pre-award surveys and other techniques. How to structure requests for bids' proposals—and how to use subs' quotations in preparing the prime's proposal (prior to award of the prime contract). Step-by-step procedures in conducting competitive bidding (between sub's) for negotiated subcontracts. The "bidders' conference" for prospective subs. Detailed instruction in the methods and forms available for evaluating subs' bids and proposals (including sample evaluation checklists and scoring forms).

Kenneth B. Gay, Vice President—Material: North American Rockwell Corp.

4:45 CLINIC

Messrs. Singer and Gay

Overton A. Currie: Partner: Smith, Currie & Hance

Wednesday, December 11

9:00 ADMINISTERING SUBCONTRACTS

How to organize a subcontracts department for both Govt and commercial business; training subcontracting personnel and evaluating their performance; practical methods of measuring the effectiveness of your subcontracting operating. Planning and procedures for materials management and administration of subcontracts. Establishing, and effectively operating, communications channels with subs and within your organization. Negotiating changes; procedures for change control. Monitoring subs' performance; techniques of dealing with subs. Problems caused by lower-tier subs. Schedule slippage and cost overruns.

Edward J. Renner, Jr., Manager, C-5 Procurement: Lockheed-Georgia Co.

1:30 GOVERNMENT REQUIREMENTS

Government-prime-sub relationship: basic Govt subcontracting policy; the "privity" concept. Govt evaluation, approval and surveillance of prime's overall purchasing system. Small business and labor surplus area subcontracting programs. The "make-or-buy" problem: Govt policy and the prime's make-or-buy evaluation and decision procedures. Cost or pricing data requirements—"truth in negotiations" and its complications in subcontracting situations. Technical data policies and problems.

A. Cuneo, Partner: Sellers, Conner & Cuneo

Thursday, December 12

9:00 DISPUTES, TERMINATIONS & SPECIAL PROBLEMS

Disputes involving the Govt, the prime and the sub; how to handle "indirect appeals" by the sub (including recommended subcontract appeal provisions). Problems involved in default and convenience terminations of subs (a) under Govt prime contracts and (b) under ordinary commercial prime contracts—incuding, causes of default, excuses for default, analysis of convenience termination procedures, settlements, etc. Methods of payment to subs: advance payments, progress payments, loans, assignments and transfers, etc. Other special problems.

Walter F. Pettit, Partner and Thomas W. Kemp, Associate: Miller, Groezinger, Pettit, Evers & Martin

1:30 PLANNING FOR NEGOTIATION

Evaluating the issues and objectives of the particular negotiation. Precisely defining and recording your negotiation position (optimum and minimum) on each point in advance of the negotiation. Selecting your negotiation team and training them and planning your negotiation strategy. Explanation and guidelines for use) of key negotiation tools such as price analysis, cost analysis, improvement curves, value analysis, etc. Documentation; preparation and utilization of charts, graphs and other "visuals."

12-STATE LAW REVIEW MEETING NOVEMBER 21-23

The William and Mary Law Review will play host to the annual Southern Law Review Conference at the Cascade Conference Center of Colonial Williamsburg November 21, 22, and 23. Student editorial staff members and faculty advisers for law reviews in twelve states are being invited to attend the three days of panel discussion and work sessions.

Glenn J. Sedam, Jr., of the editorial board of the William and Mary Law Review is local chairman of the conference committee. Following a general reception on Thursday evening, the conference will open with a general meeting on the morning of November 22. Two morning seminars, a panel discussion and a third seminar in the afternoon will make up the main part of the program for that day, with a luncheon speaker and an evening banquet which will feature an address by retired Justice Tom C. Clark.

A fourth seminar and a general discussion of law review production problems, and a final Saturday luncheon, will conclude the program.

The seminars will cover the general editorial process, selection of law review candidates, and business management. The panel will be made up of deans, faculty advisers and practicing attorneys. While the delegates are involved in the conference, arrangements have been made for student wives to have a conducted tour of Colonial Williamsburg.

The annual conference is held at a member school in an area extending from Virginia to Texas and Florida to Missouri. It was last held in Williamsburg in 1960.

ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

R. Harvey Chappell, Jr., '50, recently was elected to membership in the American College of Trial Lawyers, a prestigious association whose invitations to membership are limited to 1 percent of the practitioners in any state. He is one of thirty-nine Virginia lawyers who presently hold such membership.

John Meagher, '65, has been acting for the past three years as legislative assistant to Congressman Alexander Pirnie of New York.

Another all-alumni law firm has been formed in the state, this time in Virginia Beach: Mary Catherine Holcomb, '65, A. J. Coffman, '65, and Penelope Dalton Coffman, '66.

Randy Kraftson, '67, is with the Philadelphia firm of Ringe, Pett and Mason.

David Agatstein, '68, is with the New York firm of Ballon, Stoll and Shayman.

Thomas Clark, '68, is associated in practice with John Moore, '61, in Selingsgrove, Pa.

James Boyd, '68, is with the firm of Woodward, Miles, Davis and Flannagan in Bristol, Va.

Richard Repp, '67, is with the Richmond firm of Hirschler and Fleischer.

Sam T. Beale, '67, is with the Richmond firm of Hunton, Williams, Gay, Powell and Gibson.

Jack Coffey, '68, is with the firm of Coffey, Ward, McGovern and Navagroski in Providence, R. I.

WOODBRIDGE FUND DRIVE CONTINUING

Sparked by a four-figure gift from the Lusardi Foundation late last spring, the Law School Association drive for a Dudley Warner Woodbridge endowment for the Law School is now approaching the one-fourth marker in its goal. It is hoped that by the time of the next Law School Association meeting in the spring of 1969, the half-way marker will have been passed.

The maximum goal set for the drive is $120,000, with the income from such an endowment being used to supplement a professorial salary and provide a scholarship grant. If the final total is less than this goal, only one of the two uses for the fund will be designated.

Professor Emeric Fischer of the Law School, secretary-treasurer of the Law School Association, is administrator for the campaign. All members of the Association have been approached by mail with pledge cards and addressed envelopes for remittance.

LAW SCHOOL CALENDAR FALL 1968

December 7—Fourteenth annual William and Mary Tax Conference.

December 9-13—Second conference on Subcontracting, co-sponsored with Federal Publications, Inc.

9:00 THE ART OF NEGOTIATION

A realistic presentation of negotiation techniques—the drama, the drudgery, the dangers. Analyzing the opposition—its psychological motivations, business and personal pressures, legitimate objectives, probable "last ditch" positions. Classical attitudes and negotiating devices of the buyer and the seller. How to set the stage, establish dominance, and carry through to a conclusion. A cataloging of "ploys"—including the waiting game, question-answer dialogues, keeping the opposition off balance, bargaining devices, jockeying for position, end-running the roadblocks, humor, righteous indignation, feigned ignorance, the non-final last offer, etc. Selling your organization's image and objectives. Settling down to hard-nosed bargaining. Concluding the negotiations; executing a memo of agreement.

LEGAL FRATERNITIES
OPEN 1968 SCHEDULE

Both of the legal fraternities at the Law School have launched quickly onto a busy schedule of activities for the fall semester. For the George Wythe chapter of Phi Alpha Delta, however, everything will be pointing toward the regional meeting of PAD chapters which will be hosted by the local group in February.

PAD can also point with pride to the $500 scholarship, one of fifteen offered by the national fraternity to outstanding law students, which was awarded to Bob Elliott this fall. A special presentation of the scholarship was made in the foyer of the Law School building early in October.

The regional meeting of Phi Alpha Delta chapters is scheduled for the latter part of February, and will bring delegates from chapters in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and North Carolina, as well as the District of Columbia.

The Thomas Jefferson Inn of Phi Delta Phi launched its year with a luncheon meeting October 16 at which Senator Herbert Bateman of Newport News spoke on “The Place of the Dissenter in Contemporary Society.” The November meeting will feature Senator Henry Howell of Norfolk.

FACULTY ACTIVITIES

Associate Dean James P. Whyte is one of a number of specialists in labor law who will participate in October in a conference on problems of public employment, to be held in New York October 14-16 on invitation of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Professor Whyte has recently heard arbitration cases in Mobile, Ala., Chattanooga, Tenn., Joliet, Ill., and Fort Wayne, Ind. Two of his recent decisions have been published: one, involving the Weyerhauser Company, appears in 51 L.A. 192; the other, involving the Mueller Company, appears in 68-2 ARB, 8143.

Dr. William F. Swindler has been made a member of “Scribes,” an honorary affiliate of the American Bar Association for members of the bar who have written one or more books on legal subjects. Dr. Swindler’s high school edition of Magna Carta will be published in October by Grosset & Dunlap of New York. His previous books are Magna Carta: Legend and Legacy (Bobbs-Merrill, 1965) and Problems of Law in Journalism (Macmillan, 1955).

The number of law faculty members, including emeriti professors, in Who’s Who in America has now climbed to five with the invitation to listing recently extended to Associate Dean James P. Whyte. Retired Professors Thomas C. Atkeson and Dudley W. Woodbridge, Dean Joseph Curtis and Professor Swindler complete the list.

Mrs. Anna B. Johnson, Law Librarian since 1959, has recently been given the new title of Director of the Law Library.
ENGLISH SUMMER PROGRAM TO CONTINUE IN 1969

After two years of experimentation with curriculum and procedure, the Law School’s annual Program of Summer Studies in Law in England appears to be settling into a definite format. A six-week session, apparently the optimum time for overseas studies, will be the order for 1969 when the course will be offered from July 7 to August 16.

Announcements of the 1969 offerings will go out this month to all accredited American law schools, with detailed brochures to follow. The 1968 session attracted nearly 70 students from more than 30 law schools.

An attractive certificate, showing completion of the courses for credit, is being executed by the Law School for mailing to all enrolled students in the past summer program.

A detailed questionnaire, prepared by Professor Emeric Fischer of the Law School and Dr. Dominik Lasok, 1966-67 exchange professor from Exeter, solicited from the 1968 students various suggestions and criticisms. The chief recommendation was for a substantially increased number of discussions on the English law and legal system, by members of the bench and bar. Plans are now in progress to add these features to future summer programs on a broader basis than has been possible to the present.

"MARSHALL-WYTHE" NOW MEANS LAW BUILDING

Effective October 15 a long-standing confusion of names on campus will be resolved (presumably) when the present structure housing the Marshall-Wythe School of Law becomes Marshall-Wythe Hall. The College Board of Visitors this summer approved a recommendation that the name of the general administration building, which has been "Marshall-Wythe" since it was constructed in 1936, be changed to James Blair Hall and the name of the Chief Justice and his professor be merged with the name of the law school identified with them.

Formal renaming was delayed until after fall registration, since printed announcements had already been sent out to incoming students using the old names of the buildings. There was some confusion among entering undergraduates who had somehow learned that "Marshall-Wythe" was now at the east end of the Sunken Garden instead of the west end. This compounded the confusion of Law School office secretaries who for years have been used to saying, "No, this is the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, but the Marshall-Wythe Building is . . . ." Their improvised statement that "This isn’t Marshall-Wythe Hall yet," was intriguing, to say the least.
