The Carter O. Lowance
Fellowship in Public Service

Fred P. Graham

January 30, 1996

The Carter O. Lowance Fellowship was established in 1989 as a part of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at William and Mary's School of Law. The program brings a distinguished public servant to campus for several days of lectures, discussions, and meeting with students and members of the college community.

The Fellowship was established in memory of an outstanding public servant, Carter O. Lowance.

Mr. Lowance's extraordinary 30-year career in Virginia politics began in 1947. As chief-of-staff for six governors, he first served under Governor William M. Tuck and continued through the second term of Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr. In addition, he was assistant president of the Medical College of Virginia for three years and executive vice president of the College of William and Mary from 1970 until 1974.

Mr. Lowance's first job was as a reporter for the Roanoke Times. Through all the years of his career, Carter Lowance said that he never lost his love for journalism.
