1968 SESSION

Summer Studies in Law in England

ACCREDITED COURSES FOR AMERICAN LAW STUDENTS OFFERED BY THE Marshall-Wythe School of Law COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

TWO FOUR-WEEK SESSIONS IN AMERICAN AND COMPARATIVE LAW SUBJECTS CARRYING UP TO NINE SEMESTER HOURS CREDIT WITH OPPORTUNITIES FOR OPTIONAL INDEPENDENT RESEARCH

July 1 - August 23

AT UNIVERSITY OF EXETER * ENGLAND
In the summer of 1967, as an extension of its established student and faculty exchange program with the University of Exeter in England, the College of William and Mary in Virginia inaugurated a program of Summer Studies in Law in England. Utilizing the physical facilities of the University of Exeter and the resources of the law library of the University’s Faculty of Law, the College’s Marshall-Wythe School of Law offered courses which were particularly appropriate for study in the surroundings of common law origins. Thus a number of American law students have been afforded a unique opportunity to earn credit, normally transferable to their home institutions, in the course of a summer of study in the homeland of Anglo-American jurisprudence. Courses taught by both English and American faculty were enriched by guest speakers and by visits to England’s trial and appellate courts.

Students from eighteen American law schools attended the 1967 program of Summer Studies in Law in England. On the basis of their appraisal of the first summer’s program, as well as the evaluation of English and American faculty, practitioners and administrators, the program has been enlarged for the summer of 1968 in order to permit more students to enrich their legal education by study in association with students, faculty and lawyers from diverse parts of the United States and England.

SCHEDULE
July 1-26 and July 29-August 23, 1968
The 1968 Summer Studies program will consist of two 4-week terms and students may elect to attend one or both terms. Courses of 1 and 2 semester hours credit will be offered. Number of class meetings and duration of classes will be in accordance with the requirements of the Association of American Law Schools, and regular class attendance will be expected. A course load not in excess of 4 semester hours in each term is recommended. Weeks of residence credit will be given commensurate with the number of semester hours credit carried. Credit will be given by the College of William and Mary the same as if the courses were being offered on the Williamsburg campus. Many law schools approved transfer credit for the courses given in 1967.
A student may be permitted 1 hour of credit for legal research undertaken in each term. The research will be supervised by the resident staff and can be done at the Exeter Law Library.

FACILITIES
Living accommodations, including room and board, and all regular classes will be offered at Crossmead Hall, formerly a private estate and now operated by the University of Exeter in the suburbs of Exeter (pop. 90,000). A suitable working library is maintained at Crossmead for collateral reading in the courses offered, and the law library of the University is available for use by students in the summer program. For those engaged in directed research, the excellent law libraries in London and in other legal centers will be valuable sources of information.

ENGLISH LEGAL INSTITUTIONS
One of the primary advantages of the program of Summer Studies in Law in England is the opportunity to enrich the student’s knowledge of American legal institutions and procedure by a comparison with English institutions which have developed out of the same cultural and jurisprudential background. Some course offerings are exclusively comparative, but all of them are oriented toward a continuing dialogue on comparative principles. It is expected that some English law students and young professors at English universities will form part of the student body. In many courses, visiting lecturers will develop comparative aspects of the subject-matter. Visits to courts and other legal institutions will afford opportunity to observe English law in action.

INDEPENDENT LEGAL RESEARCH
To take advantage of the rich opportunities to study certain specific areas of law in action, a limited number of qualified law students will be permitted to earn one or two hours of credit in Legal Research. Such students will be assigned to a specific scholar or expert, under whom he will carry out a directed program of independent study.
COURSES AND CREDITS

Courses will be taught by regular members of the faculties of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law and of the University of Exeter, with visiting lecturers and panelists as opportunity permits. Subject to enrollment and availability of faculty, the following courses are tentatively scheduled for the 1968 Summer Program. Courses meeting one and one-half hours daily will carry two semester hours credit and those meeting for one hour daily, one hour credit.

FIRST TERM
July 1-26

8:00-9:30 Restitution; Introduction to Civil Law
9:30-10:30 English Legal Systems
10:30-12:00 International Law; Jurisprudence

ELIGIBILITY

The program of Summer Studies in Law in England is open to any American law student, over the age of twenty-one years, in good standing at a law school approved by the American Bar Association. There are limited facilities for married students, and even more limited facilities for single women students. Normally, an applicant will have completed or be in the process of completing at least one year of law study, although exceptional cases varying from the norm will be considered.

In filing an application for the 1968 summer program, students must submit with the
The courses have been selected with a view to strong affinity for the English common law, or subjects which in themselves are comparative law. Students may carry a total of 5 hours-credit courses in either term by filling their schedule from 8 to 12 daily, but not more than a total of 9 hours in both terms may be earned, and the suggested load is 3 or 4 hours in each term. The hours at which the respective courses are to be offered are subject to change, as well as the subject courses themselves depending upon interest indicated by applicants.

SECOND TERM
July 29-August 23

8:00-9:30 Administrative Law; International Commercial Transactions
9:30-10:30 English Legal History
10:30-12:00 Comparative Law; Insurance

Tuition is refundable thereafter only if applicant is unable to attend for reasons beyond his control. Balance of room and board is refundable only if waiting-list applicant purchases the accommodations. The applicant must decide by this date if he will attend the full eight-week session, and if so, payment in full must be made as above.

TRANSPORTATION ARRANGEMENTS

The College of William and Mary accepts no responsibility for transportation of participants in the program of Summer Studies in Law in England. It is anticipated, however, that charter plane flights will be available, and as plans for such flights materialize a special information sheet will be sent to applicants. The 1967 charter flight was arranged at a cost of approximately $335 per person, so that this figure may be used as a general estimate of the probable cost for a similar flight in 1968.

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES

The cultural opportunities attending the program of Summer Studies in Law in England are manifold and suited to every taste. Exeter, an attractive and ancient cathedral town, is located in Devon, in southwestern England, only a few miles from the South Devon coast with its excellent beaches. Direct train connections to London are also available. In addition to regular trips to sites and activities of professional interest, a number of events are planned for wives and families.
